Rhee's Opponents Insist On Elections: Cool To His New Plan

SEOUL (AP) — Adamant opposition leaders insisted Sunday on new elections before even considering President Syngman Rhee's plan to yield some of his powers to a new premier.

Despite efforts of Rhee and his backers to find a way out of the crisis, opposition democrats showed no signs of budging from their demands.

Rhee continued rounds of conferences with men in and out of the government before issuing a statement expected to divorce himself from all party politics.

Rhee also was reported ready to make other concessions to ease the crisis precipitated by last Tuesday's bloody uprisings in Korea's major cities in which at least 125 persons were killed and 777 wounded.

"He will sever his present relations with the Liberal party," said Y. C. Pyun, ex-premier who talked with Rhee Saturday for the second time in two days. "He wants to dissociate himself from the Liberal party."

Thus Rhee would serve as a nonpolitical chief of state with a premier as chief of the government. But skeptical political opponents wondered how much power Rhee would be willing to relinquish.

They wondered whether he would insist on the right of picking the premier and Cabinet or leave that to the National Assembly as in a true cabinet-responsibility system.

Lt. Gen. Song Yo-chan, South Korea's martial law commander, announced that censorship in the Korean press would be lifted shortly and that grade schools, closed last Tuesday, would be reopened Monday.

Song also ended the extra-long 7 p.m., to 5 a.m. curfew in the five cities under martial law, and ordered a return to the normal midnight to 4 a.m. curfew.

President Rhee's projected move to withdraw from partisan politics seemed designed to protect his status as father of the country.

One other move in that direction was his visit Saturday to a Seoul hospital to console some of the victims in last Tuesday's clash between police and antigovernment demonstrators. A government spokesman said Rhee stopped at the beds of 40 or more of the injured and shed tears over some of the victims and left money for them.

Students Protest U.S.-Japanese Security Treaty

TOKYO (AP) — One thousand leftist Japanese students staged a demonstration Saturday near the Diet — Parliament — against the new U.S.-Japanese security treaty. About 5,000 police kept them in check.

Inside, government lawmakers found the going rough in their attempts to speed ratification of the pact that allows U.S. troops to remain in Japan.

The government has been wrangling for four days with the opposition Socialists, who bitterly oppose the treaty.

The demonstration, organized by the radical leftist Zengakuren Student Federation, was a mild one compared with the riot last Nov. 27, when students broke through a police barricade into the Diet compound.

The students were blocked 500 yards away from the Diet building by eight police armored cars and trucks lined up fender to fender across the wide avenue leading to the Diet. The students sat down and sang "The Internationale." One student was arrested.

Harold F. Pitcairn, Aviation Pioneer, Takes His Own Life

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold F. Pitcairn, famed aviation pioneer, took his life early Saturday with a single pistol shot. Only a few hours before he was the life of the party at a big celebration of his brother's 75th birthday.

Pitcairn, 62, whose life has been concerned chiefly with the perfection of flying, killed himself in the study of his medieval-style stone mansion, Cairncrest, in suburban Bryn Athyn.

His wife, Clara, found him slumped in his big desk chair moments after a shot awakened her. A seven-shot automatic pistol lay on the desk.

Pitcairn actually fired two shots. But one bullet went wild and hit the ceiling. The other drilled through his right eye.

In the house, besides the wife, was one of the eight Pitcairn children, John, and two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Asplundh, who had come for the party honoring the brother, Raymond, a conspicuous Eisenhower-Nixon supporter in 1952 and 1956. Asplundh is board chairman of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

Dr. John Simpson, Montgomery County coroner, said the death was suicide beyond a doubt. Authorities puzzled over the motive, however, since they found no explanatory note, and all Pitcairn's intimates said he had seemed in good health and spirits. All spoke of his gaiety at the party for 450 or more guests and remarked that his humor flowed with unusual facility.

Pitcairn was born in Bryn Athyn June 20, 1897. His father, was head of Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Harold became an airplane pilot at 18. Soon he was flying seaplanes at the Curtiss School in Buffalo. After his schooling he joined the staff of Pittsburgh Plate Glass, then became president of the Oowosso Sugar Co. With America's entry into World War I he signed up as a flying cadet.

Kennedy Blasts Plot In Oregon To Stop Him

PORTLAND, Ore., (AP) —A scheme to get all other candidates to pull out of the Oregon Democratic presidential primary and leave the field clear for Oregon's favorite son, Sen. Wayne Morse, was charged Saturday by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass).

He said it was part of the "Stop Kennedy" strategy — "an attempt to use Sen. Morse as they are currently using Sen. Hubert Humphrey in West Virginia."

Kennedy did not name the source of his information, but he told The Associated Press it was "a very high reliable source."

He said such an action would help destroy the national primary system which already is under attack. In remarks prepared for a rally here in support of his presidential nomination campaign he said, "I don't believe the people of Oregon or West Virginia are interested in stopping any candidate. They are interested in the future of our country."

Earlier in the day in informal talks at Medford and Ashland in southern Oregon, Kennedy said primaries are under such steady attack that they may not survive.

"If a candidate who did not run in any primary were nominated," he said, "the system might be abandoned." He warned against this and said for all its faults, the primary system was the best devised and it was the "weapon originally drawn up to get rid of boss rule."

Kennedy was under treatment for a sore throat but said it was not serious.

Acid Is Poured On Sleeping Man

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—Acid was poured over the face of a man sleeping in his home Saturday. The father of a boy killed in a traffic accident was arrested.

Doctors said Merle Morgan, 45, may lose the sight of one eye.

Police arrested James N. Elliott, 54, at his home in neighboring Brubank and booked him on suspicion of assault with chemicals.

Elliott's son, James, 15, was killed in a collision last year north of Bakersfield, Calif. Morgan and the youth were in Morgan's car. Morgan said he had been absolved officially of blame in the crash but had received threats from Elliott and another son.

Morgan said he saw no one following the attack.

Nixon Says Demo Candidates Made Religion Campaign Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon indicated Saturday he believes the candidates and their backers themselves have made religion an issue in the Democratic presidential campaign.

"Religion will be an issue exactly to the extent that the candidates and those who support them continue to make it an issue," Nixon told the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Much has been made in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination, especially in the current West Virginia campaigning, over the Roman Catholic affiliation of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Kennedy and his West Virginia opponent, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota repeated religion should not be an issue. So have the other contenders for the Democratic nomination.

Nixon, in his speech to a luncheon session of the editors, also said there are good reasons to think that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants an easing of tensions at next month's summit conference in Paris.

"I think this may be his attitude," the vice president said, "not because he is motivated by what he scorns as sentimental idealism but because, realist that he is, he is concerned by some hard facts of international life."

The same editors two days ago heard Kennedy recite a long list of reasons why he said his Catholicism should not handicap his bid for the presidency. And Humphrey told them he doesn't want to be nominated by anti-Catholic votes and would rather not be president than see his party split over the issue. Humphrey is a Congregationalist.

Nixon, a Quaker, is without opposition for the Republican nomination.

"There is only one way that I can visualize religion being a legitimate issue in an American

Charge State Crime Bureau Neglected By 3 Governors

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An official of the powerful Illinois Sheriff's Assn. Saturday called the controversial State Criminal Identification Bureau a stepchild neglected by three governors.

Rep. Elmer Hoffman (R-Wheaton) commented on the resignation Friday of the bureau's chief, James Christensen. Hoffman said Christensen should be urged to stay and the bureau reinforced to compare with the FBI crime laboratory.

Hoffman, association secretary and former sheriff of DuPage County, said he was calling an executive committee meeting Tuesday after being flooded with phone calls from sheriffs.

"They all feel it's a crisis," he added.

Christensen, 60, a veteran of nearly 21 years service with the agency of the Illinois Public Safety Department, said he was unswerving in his resignation. He starts a three-week terminal vacation Monday. He said he will consider three out-of-state job offers.

Christensen gave his resignation to Public Safety Director Joseph D. Bibb because Bibb said, "Someone was asleep" in connection with the investigation of the slaying of three Riverside, Ill., matrons at Starved Rock State Park March 14.

The bureau, LaSalle County authorities and State Police overlooked for two weeks rings which one of the women had hidden in the middle finger of a heavy winter glove.

Bibb said he has not acted on the resignation. Christensen said: "I've had at least 25 sheriffs and state's attorneys call me upholding my decision. They thought it was unjustifiable criticism and that the bureau and myself were being made a goat."

Hoffman said he didn't blame anyone—"but the bureau's value

Supersonic Jet Crashes, 2 Men Missing, One Safe

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—A supersonic jet bomber crashed into the Great Salt Lake of northern Utah Friday. One of the three civilian crew members bailed out and he was found Saturday. But he said he knew nothing of the fate of the others.

The Air Force said the survivor was Kenneth G. Timpson, 29, a flight test engineer, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Ground crews were sent to the scene of the wreckage. It was not immediately known if the other two crew members stayed with the plane or bailed out also. Timpson said all he knew was that he was the first one to jump.

The bomber, a B58 Hustler which can travel twice the speed of sound, was on a test flight from Fort Worth to Salt Lake City and back when it radioed to Salt Lake City Airport at 2:22 p.m., Friday that it was having unspecified trouble.

The pilot called off a practice radar bomb run over the city and was not heard from again.

Officials at Hill Air Force Base, where Timpson was taken, said nothing was known of the fate of the other crewmen. They were Ray Tanhaoff, 38, the pilot, and Walter Simon, 30, another engineer, both from Fort worth.

Timpson said he bailed out of the plane at 17,000 feet at 4 p.m. and landed in the salt water of the lake about one mile from shore. He inflated his raft and paddled to the shore where he built a lean-to and spent the night.

Says Solution Of Berlin Issue At Summit Meeting Impossible

WASHINGTON (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle warned the Soviet Saturday that any sudden "brutal threat" against Berlin would wreck prospects that the summit conference can improve East-West relations.

In the midst of talks with President Eisenhower, De Gaulle said bluntly that a solution of the Berlin problem is impossible at the long-awaited summit parley three weeks hence.

The 69-year-old French leader expressed confidence however that the Big Four chiefs can find what he called a "practical start" toward world disarmament.

Ignoring American objections to the idea, he urged Western and Communist countries to join in a program of economic aid to the two billion people in underdeveloped lands.

De Gaulle, who talked confidentially with Premier Nikita Khrushchev a month ago, strongly hinted he really doesn't expect the Soviet leader to set off a new crisis over Berlin.

"It seems to me that had the Soviet Union wanted to keep on the pressure and the threat looming over the West because of Berlin, it would have done so," he said. "And the Soviet Union did not."

But, apparently with Khrushchev's unpredictable nature in mind, De Gaulle added this note of caution: "If the relations between East and West are to be improved there should not dawn on the conference the brutal threat of any question, and in particular of Berlin."

De Gaulle took a calm, unruffled view of the problems dividing the world as he moved through the second day of his four-day state visit. Friendly crowds applauded him whenever he appeared in public.

With President Eisenhower at his side, he took time out to lay a red, white and blue wreath at the statue of the Marquis de Lafayette, the French general who helped Americans win freedom from Britain in the Revolutionary War.

In an unusual gesture, Eisenhower walked across Pennsylvania Avenue with him for the ceremony in sun-dappled Lafayette Park. It marked the first time Eisenhower has left the White House grounds on foot since he became President nearly 7½ years ago.

De Gaulle, meeting with newsmen for an hour, paid tribute to Khrushchev as "a great personality" but made it clear he disagrees vigorously with the Soviet leader's frequent denunciations of West Germany.

"Germany doesn't threaten anybody," De Gaulle said. "France doesn't feel she is threatened by the Germany of Chancellor Adenauer. . . nor is Russia threatened by Western Germany."

De Gaulle's main theme, emphasized often with a gesture of his hand, was that East-West leaders can hope only for a very limited start in settling problems in view of current tensions.

"If we make some progress . . . there will be a simultaneous change in the atmosphere," he said, "and gradually solutions to the problems that divide the world will begin to appear . . . . And after a certain time it will be possible to make further progress. Such is my philosophy."

30-Inch Snow Falls Along Northern Rockies

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — A spring snowstorm heaped as much as 30 inches of snow along the Continental Divide and up to six inches at this capital city Saturday in a continuing 36-hour storm.

The Weather Bureau predicted the storm may continue through part of Sunday.

The heavy gray clouds clung mostly along the northern Rockies. Dry eastern Montana plains areas in need of crop-growing moisture escaped the snow.

"It's been a million-dollar snow for our wheat country," said reporter Earl Best of Cut Bank.

PRISONERS ESCAPE IN DEPUTY'S STATION WAGON

GREENFIELD, Ind. (AP) — Three prisoners escaped from the Hancock County Jail here today in a deputy sheriff's flashy station wagon.

The trio were identified as Michael Mantle, 20, Ashland, Ky.; Robert E. Scott, 31, Chicago, and David R. Frazier, 35, Rt. 2, Roachdale, Ind. Authorities said they were not armed as far as anyone knew, but Scott and Frazier were dangerous.

Mantle was a jail trusty and was washing Deputy Sheriff Robert Sebastian's red and white station wagon outside the building. He apparently got hold of some cell keys and released the other two, leaving four other prisoners still locked up.

5-Month-Old Boy Recovers From 2 Major Operations

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Timmy Fuller was born five months ago with cataracts blinding both eyes and a loud, scratchy heart murmur. He weighed only three pounds, two ounces.

Timmy went home from the hospital Saturday, possibly the youngest child ever to survive two major operations for heart defects. Now doctors hope they can give him sight.

His mother, Mrs. George Fuller of Plainville, was stricken with measles during pregnancy, and the infant was born a month early.

At three weeks, Timmy's heart failed. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital here, where a diagnosis showed a patent ductus arteriosus—an unnatural shunt between the aorta and the pulmonary artery.

Doctors put off surgery until the infant, weighing four pounds, could reach at least eight pounds.

Then came a series of harrowing experiences for Timmy and his parents, employed by a supermarket.

Timmy spent seven weeks at home and became ill with bronchities. He returned to the hospital for five days.

Home again two weeks later, Timmy's heart failed for the second time. X-rays showed the baby also had pneumonia in both lungs.

Doctors decided to operate as soon as the pneumonia could be cleared. The surgery appeared successful, but five days later Timmy's heart failed again.

The doctors found a second congenital heart defect, pulmonic stenosis, a narrowing of the pulmonary valve.

They felt Tim would have a chance, however, if he could withstand open-heart surgery to correct the narrowed valve.

Now, 15 days after this second operation, Timmy weighs seven pounds, six ounces—a gain of a pound since surgery—and doctors feel he is in good shape.

With the heart repaired, Tim may undergo eye operations.

The prognosis: Excellent chance for one eye, an even chance for both.

Bars Convince Six Students Simulated Holdup Isn't Funny

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Iron bars convinced six college students Saturday that nobody thinks bank robbery is funny—even if it is only simulated and is on "Character Day" when you're supposed to dress up and have fun.

The six—five Santa Rosa Junior College male students and a coed — learned the hard way Friday after authorities booked them on federal bank robbery charges.

Unable to make $5,000 bail each, Pat Marcucci, 19, Healdsburg; Frank Palmieri Jr., 20 Santa Rosa; Alan Sutter, 18; Petaluma; Bob Lindstein, 18, San Leandro; John Cabel, 19, Redwood City, and Frank Priori, 21, Los Gatos, stayed in the Santa Rosa jail.

They're to be transferred Monday to Sacramento for a hearing before a U.S. commissioner.

The six dressed in Roaring 20s style for the school's annual "Character Day." Pat, a brunette song leader, impersonated a flapper. The fellows wore oversized overcoats, derbies and caps and dark glasses.

They had an arsenal of toy guns —submachine gun, sawed-off shotgun, two BB guns and four pistols.

They invited a newspaper photographer to come along when they strolled into the downtown Bank of America branch Friday.

Pat, smoking a cigaret from a long holder, handed a note to a teller demanding change for $1. She got two 50-cent pieces.

A teller, reminded of her experience in a real bank holdup, screamed. A bank official called police.

An FBI agent had to be reassured the toy submachine gun was a plaything.

The photographer filmed the whole thing. Officers confiscated his film.

"Our reaction to their humor is very poor," said Scott O'Leary, bank manager.

"An act of utter stupidity," added college President Randolph Newman.

Brunette Patricia, stunned, asked the jail matron: "How long will I have to serve? When will I get out?"

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY MEETS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Church policies on integration and birth control will come up for review next week during the 100th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S. (Southern).

Observers foresee little chance of any change in the policy outlined shortly after the Supreme Court decision—that integration is a Christian necessity.

For the first time since 1955, the Assembly will be asked to work toward a merger with the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. (Northern).

The Assembly's plan for a reunion of the two branches of the Presbyterian Church was rejected in a vote by presbyteries five years ago.

Douglas: Berlin Concession Would Be Fatal

CHICAGO (AP) — Senator Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said Saturday night that a Summit concession on freedom of West Berlin "would be even more fatal to freedom than was the surrender of Chamberlain and Daladier to Hitler at Munich.

Douglas said, "It would cause supporters of democracy everywhere to lose heart. It would lead in all probability to the breakup of the Western alliance, and to a wholesale movement into the Communist camp of tens of millions of people.

"If Berlin goes, then all of Germany is likely to go—and NATO will in all likelihood collapse."

Douglas spoke at a dinner meeting of the Weber High School Alumni Assn.

He said that if the United States fails to stress the right of people in Communist satellite countries to ultimate independence it would remove a powerful moral deterrent to Russian agression against free nations.

Western Union Yields To Clock Twirling Fad

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Western Union Telegraph Co. has finally surrendered to the advocates of daylight saving time, which goes into effect Sunday in St. Louis.

Hannibal and Palmyra decided this week to join the St. Louis metropolitan area and nearby Illinois in using daylight time. Most of Missouri remains on standard time.

Guidance Counselors Conclude Two-Day Discussion Friday

Education must have "reason and purpose," Dr. Robert P. Lisensky of the MacMurray College Sociology Department declared Friday at a meeting of 25 guidance counselors and directors in Norris House. They came from Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and Pennsylvania for two days of discussion on higher education, climaxed Friday evening with a dinner at the Jacksonville Country Club.

Speaking on the place that the church-related college has in higher education, Dr. Lisensky said that education itself is not enough. "It is not the ignorant tyrant that we are afraid of," he said, "but the educated one."

"Thus the church-related colleges like MacMurray have the common goal of injecting reason and purpose into the educative process," he said. Dr. Lisensky, who is an ordained Methodist minister, emphasized that religious denominationalism; should not be injected into education.

"Colleges that teach merely in the Methodist or the Presbyterian or some other sectarian tradition have nothing to sell—at that point," he said. "But all church-related colleges have the common objective of presenting knowledge that is spiritually meaningful."

One way of building this "ethical imperative" into education, he pointed out, is through a student Honor Code, like that at MacMurray. Because this system will not work on the outside does not mean that it should not be tried in college, "because by mistakes we can learn, and eventually some of this may be re-built into society."

By the MacMurray Honor Code, he meant, for example, giving examinations with no professor or proctor present to check on cheaters. If cheating is done, he said, students can turn in the name of the cheater to a student judiciary, with punishment administered by that body subject to approval of the administration.

Because of this concern with "ethical imperatives," he said, colleges are not merely a reflection of society—as are most organizations— but by injecting knowledge with reason and purpose, they attempt a new interpretation of society. He warned here that colleges should not try to "direct" society, but instead "build some kind of productive element for a change."

Safety Council Opposes Use Of Miniature Cars

The National Safety Council opposes the use of miniature motor vehicles, commonly called carts or go-carts, by drivers below driver licensing age and reaffirms its opposition to motor vehicle speed events of any type.

While the laws of all states automatically exclude these miniature vehicles, designed primarily for use by children, from the public streets and highways, there is little or no control over their use on private property. As a result, several children have been killed or injured operating these vehicles, sometimes in speed events sponsored by adults.

No one under legal driver licensing age has the judgment, coordination, or sense of responsibility to operate a motor vehicle of any kind. Furthermore, there is no evidence to show that operating these miniature vehicles provides good training for later driving of full-sized automobiles, nor is there any evidence to show that the operation of these vehicles contributes to development of desirable attitudes for safe driving.

The Council therefore urges parents, dealers in these vehicles, and organizations to refrain from sponsoring or conducting competitive events using miniature vehicles and to do all possible to see to it that they are at no time operated by persons under legal driver age.

Chief of Police Charles Runkel said that all vehicles operated on Jacksonville streets must have a state license and be driven by a licensed driver. Violators will be prosecuted.

Dr. E. P. Kimball Tells A.A.U.W. Of 'Women's Status'

Dr. Elsa P. Kimball, professor emeritus of Sociology of MacMurray College and member of "The National Council on Family Relationships," was guest speaker April 20 at the Rockford branch of the American Association of University Women. Dean Braginton, of Rockford College introduced the speaker whose subject was "The Changing Status of Women."

Dr. Kimball pointed out that everywhere, until recent decades, men and women as joint breadwinners had cooperatively made their living in and about the homestead and local community. All this was changed when the increasing number of inventions of the last 150 years, leading to mass production and industrialization, first took men from home production. Now, more and more women to be productive, must work outside the home. Already about a third of our labor power is composed of women.

She pointed out that the fact that we have always lacked manpower is shown in our population which is composed not only of the descendants' of Colonials but of African Negroes and of millions of immigrants.

Most citizens, she said, are not aware that the American economy would collapse tomorrow if married women (to say nothing of single women) left their jobs in industry and the professions and returned home.

In view of our national peril it is imperative, said the speaker, that we train and utilize all the talent we have not only in the physical sciences but in the social sciences as well. Dr. Kimball cited studies to show how inadequately we are prepared, not only in mathematics but in foreign languages and world history.

Since census figures show that nearly all men work anyway, extra labor power does come, and must come, from women workers. Many banks and department stores already engage part-time women workers. Other industries will eventaually find ways to profitably use part-time workers.

Because of early marriage and early child-bearing the steadiest pool of full-time workers, says Secretary of Labor Mitchell, is found among women who enter or re-enter paid employment after age 35.

Since new inventions make many skills obsolete, said Dr. Kimball, what is needed most in education for both boys and girls is not vocational courses or training but guidance to courses in basic subject matter upon which specialized skilles can later be built.

With an early grasp of basic subject matter, adult education and training on the job can later be of great value, especially in the case of women, who will, for the most part, not enter paid labor for several years after high school and college education.

Dr. Kimball stated that many leaders of labor, of management and of government are agreed that much talent and potential skill, hitherto wasted, can be discovered and utilized in the intense economic and diplomatic struggle ahead if only our citizens can be made aware of the actual need and will act before it is too late.

Mrs. George Wayne Cunningham

Rita Hamilton And Wayne Cunningham Exchange Vows

Miss Rita Ann Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. Carl Hamilton, 533 Rosedale, and the late Mr. Hamilton, became the bride of George Wayne Cunningham of Wenatchee, Washington, in nuptial mass Saturday morning, April twenty-third at the Church of Our Saviour's.

Mr. Cunningham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wayne Cunningham, of Wenatchee.

Miss Celeste Flynn and Mrs. Peggy Langdon were soloists during the prelude with Mrs. Alta Eisch at the organ. Selections were "Ave Maria" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother."

Ferns and palms graced the altar of the church with white tapers in candelabra.

Mrs. Richard Hughes of Alton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Gilbert Todd, of this city, was bridesmatron.

The bride's brother-in-law, Richard Hughes, was best man and Jerry Nordberg, Marion, Illinois, was groomsman. Andrew McDonald and Mr. Nordberg seated the guests.

Mrs. Hamilton, mother of the bride, wore a Dior blue silk costume with matching color accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in silk organza with full skirts. The tulip bodice cut featured cap sleeves and was emphasized with petite bows of self material at the waistline and bustline. Mrs. Hughes wore aqua and Mrs. Todd yellow. Each carried a crescent arrangement of white carnations tied with ribbon matching the shade of their respective gowns.

The bride, given in marriage by her only brother, Carl F. Hamilton, Jr., wore an exquisite wedding dress of hand clipped Chantilly in a rose pattern. The basque bodice pointed at the center front waistline and the scalloped Sabrina neckline was reembroidered with sequins and seed pearls.

The slim tapered lace sleeves came to points over the hands and fastened with small buttons. The voluminous skirt, ending in full sweep train, was worn over hoops.

Her veil, of fingertip imported illusion, clustered to a small queen's crown of seed pearls. Her bridal bouquet was in crescent shape fashioned of white carnations and stephanotis.

For 'something borrowed' the bride chose a ten dollar gold piece, carried in her slipper, that was worn by her sister, Mrs. Hughes, on her wedding day. For sentiment the bride also wore with her wedding costume a tiny gold baby ring that had belonged to her father. The ring was threaded on a small gold chain which had been her grandmother's, and worn about the ankle.

Reception Follows

A reception was held from eleven o'clock in the morning to one in the afternoon. Guests were received in the banquet room at Hotel Dunlap where yellow and white were used in decorative appointments. A three tiered wedding cake centered the table, flanked with silver candelabra.

Assisting with serving guests were Misses Gladys, Grace and Gertrude Hamilton, Mrs. Jerry Nordberg and Mrs. Tom Cramer.

When the newlyweds left for Seattle, Washington, to make their home, the bride was wearing a navy suit with navy and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham will reside at 6825 Linden, Seattle.

Mrs. Cunningham graduated from Routt High School; Holy Cross Central School of Nursing and Saint Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana. The bridegroom is a graduate of Monson High School, Monson, Wash.; University of Washington, at Seattle, and is employed for Shell Oil Company as accountant.

The president, Mrs. Ralph Woods, opened with a greeting to guests. Other than guests appearing on the program were Mrs. George MacLean, Boston, Mass.; Miss Mary Belle Hart, Evanston, Il. and Mrs. Arthur Morgan of this city.

Mrs. Woods conducted a brief business session. Mrs. Willard Cody presented Mrs. T. C. Jenkinson, who, in turn, introduced the program. The first portion was an interesting talk by Mrs. Margery Wooford, on her visit to the British Isles last year. Mrs. Wooford prefaced her talk by telling of several instances when kindness and generosity were shown her, as a visitor from the United States.

She described the town of Stratford-On-A'Von, England, the birthplace of Shakespeare and said that it had changed very little in the past 500 years. She told of her visit to the Church of the Holy Trinity, containing the tombs of Shakespeare and his wife.

Described were the memorial theater where the speaker enjoyed several Shakesperian plays. Mrs. Wooford mentioned other spots of interest, the gallery, library and museum of Shakespeiana, the home of Anne Hathway, Shakespeare's wife and told something of each.

Springfield Ensemble

Miss Esther Duncan, sister of Mrs. Jenkinson, was then introduced. Mrs. Norris Gives Household Science Program

The Jacksonville Household Science club was entertained Tuesday afternoon, April 19, at the home of Mrs. John Spencer with Mrs. Harrison Weaver as assistant hostess.

The president, Mrs. Tilman Stout, presided at the business session. The secretary read minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll. As each member answered she gave her favorite passage of scripture. Mrs. M. C. Reynolds reported for the program committee for the coming year.

After the business session the program chairman, Mrs. H. A. Hammitt, introduced Mrs. Louis Norris who gave the program on the assigned subject, Spiritual Growth Through Reading.

Mrs. Norris opened her talk by pointing out briefly that spiritual growth is a process that has no end, and without spiritual growth there is death and decay. She stated there are many ways to grow spiritually, such as observing the lives of friends or outstanding leaders of one's generation; by profiting from addresses and sermons and participating in church life or listening to the inner voice of one's conscience.

For quiet contemplation books are the outstanding medium and an ever ready source of inspiration and help. It is through books that we find the best of life in all generations and that universal hunger for stories about characters with whom we feel kinship can be acquired.

In concluding the speaker noted the Bible is the outstanding guide to a better world but doesn't automatically transport the reader there. It is the individual action that counts for by our fruits we shall be known.

Following the program tea was served by the hostess with Mrs. Norris presiding.

Breaking The Ice For The Second Year

St. Lawrence Seaway Shippers Have High Hopes But Few Illusions Of Striking It Rich Overnight

By AL OSTROW

CLEVELAND—(NEA)—The glitter and glamour are gone as the St. Lawrence Seaway is made ready for its second navigation season.

So are most of the happy dreams of quick wealth pouring into the North American heartland on big ocean ships steaming hundreds of miles inland via the billion dollar man-made waterway.

This does not mean that the Seaway is a flop. Much more time must pass and billions of water must tumble through the giant locks before any accurate estimate of success or failure is possible.

As the sun melts the winter ice of the broad St. Lawrence River, permitting the first freighters to open the 1960 navigation season by nosing into St. Lambert Lock at Montreal, most Great Lakes shipping men and city officials have come to accept Jean-Claude Lessard as an accurate prophet.

He was one of the key men who drove the mammoth engineering job to completion in record time.

Last year, amid the hubbub and hurrahs of the Seaway's dedication, he warned that the project had been "oversold." He said that every lake city's dream of becoming a great ocean port overnight could not be realized, and that rather than a bonanza, the Seaway's first year might prove costly to many companies and cities.

Lessard was right.

Grace Lines, taking a million dollar sock in the pocketbook, will steer clear of the Seaway trade lane this year.

American Export Lines, admitting a $500,000 loss on Great Lakes operations in 1959, is curtailing its service and reducing its ports of call this year.

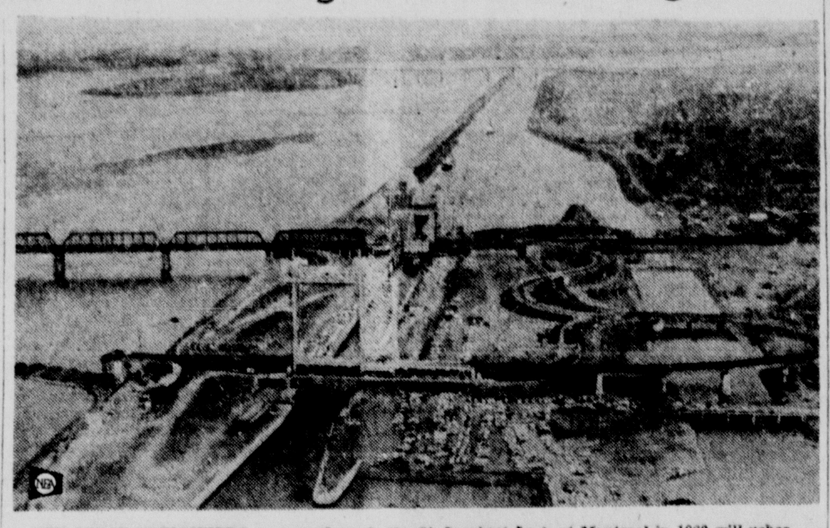
Foreign flag lines, which have lower operating costs, propose to gradually build up their Seaway operations, but plan to divert some new vessels designed for the inland seas to other areas if last year's St. Lawrence traffic tie-ups are repeated in 1960.



THE FIRST FREIGHTERS to pass through the St. Lambert Lock at Montreal in 1960 will usher in the second season of operation without the fanfare which apparently "oversold" the Seaway at the grand opening last year.

The Canadian Seaway Authority expresses confidence that improvements on the Welland Canal, the 1959 bottleneck, will permit a quicker flow of ship traffic this year.

More than 20 million tons of cargo were carried through the Seaway last year, a 71 per cent increase above the amount which passed through the smaller canal system in 1958.

But, despite hefty increases in the tonnages handled by many ports, the new traffic hardly began to compensate the Great Lakes cities for the more than 100 million dollars invested in new docks and wharves.

"That will come later," is one argument. "These are long range investments."

The cities are gambling on the accuracy of the statement by planning to invest considerably more in new port facilities during 1960 and the years ahead.

Lewis G. Castle, administrator of the American Seaway Development Corp., has not retreated from his prediction that the Seaway will carry 50 million tons of cargo a year by 1968. (The forecast for 1959 was 25 million tons, 20 per cent higher than the actual total.)

Seaway tolls didn't meet the project's operating costs and interest on indebtedness during its first season.

Despite this, both Canadian and American shipping interests are pressing their drive to make the canals toll-free. Their argument is that a booming Great Lakes ship trade would bring both Canada and the United States greater benefits than the Seaway revenues which the neighbor nations share.

Last spring, the 192 miles of Seaway locks and canals were prettied up with bright lights and bunting, ready to salute Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower when they formally dedicated the mammoth waterway. Montreal harbor was jammed with warships waiting to participate in the ceremonies.

This year, the merchantmen have Montreal harbor to themselves.

The St. Lawrence Seaway, no longer a glamour girl, but still possessing some of the globe's most unforgettable scenic splendor, is settling down to its mission as one of the world's work-horse waterways.

With The Girl Scouts

Outdoor training is the big news in Girl Scouting this week. The two-day session is for all troop leaders and will give them help in directing troop outdoor activities, including fire building, food preparation, outdoor cooking, lashing, knot-tying, hiking, etc. Tuesday, April 26, the session will be held at First Presbyterian church, corner of West College and Westminster street, in Jacksonville, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring a sack lunch, coffee will be furnished.

The second day's training will be held at the same hours on Wednesday, April 27, at Camp Shagbark in Jacksonville. Outdoor cooking will be featured and participants will prepare their own lunch.

There are still 20 cartons of cookies left at the Girl Scout office, all that is left of our total order of 25,800 boxes. (Did you notice in the 20-year ago column in this newspaper recently that 2,800 boxes were sold 20 years ago?) Let's try to sell these remaining cartons. There are no Girl Scout troops in Woodson, Murrayville, Chapin, Arenzville, Concord—have you tried to sell cookies in these communities? Let's finish up this best-ever cookie sale!

Cookie Prizes

Leaders who have girls in their troops who are eligible for prizes for selling cookies are asked to come in to the office and get the prizes: camp memory book for selling 60 boxes, Girl Scout compass for selling 80 boxes or a campership for selling 100 boxes.

Mental Health week will be observed at the Jacksonville State hospital from May 1 through May 7. Open House will be held on Sunday, May 1 and all Girl Scout troops are invited to attend, either as troops or with their parents. Movies on mental health, information booths and other features will enable visitors to ask questions and move about freely and at their leisure.

Members of the Training committee of the board of directors will meet Monday morning, April 25, at 9:30 o'clock at the Scout office.

Jacksonville neighborhood will meet Thursday morning, April 28, at 9:30 o'clock at the Scout office.

There will be a meeting of mothers of 4th grade girls who are interested in Scouting at South Jacksonville school on Friday, April 29, at 9:30 a.m.

Last week's meetings included a mother's meeting in Winchester on Tuesday, as a result of which there will be a new Brownie troop enrolled soon; an important session of the Camp committee on Wednesday and a meeting of the Scott county neighborhood in Winchester on Wednesday afternoon. The Public Relations committee met Thursday morning with a full attendance of members and the program committee met for luncheon Friday at the Dunlap hotel.

Washington School Troops

There are three very active Girl Scout troops in Washington school with 58 girls enrolled in two Brownie troops and one Intermediate troop. The two Brownie troops have each been in existence two years, Troop No. 90 having 25 third graders and Troop No. 89 with 21 fourth graders.

Mrs. John Thompson, 808 South West street, is the leader of Troop No. 90 and she is assisted by Mrs. James Penton of 527 S. Main, and Mrs. Maurice Selway, 510 S. Church street. Members of the troop committee are Mrs. Van Seymour, 831 West College; Mrs. Arlon Podshadley, No. 4 Crampton Road; and Mrs. Robert Hamm, 130 Prospect.

Mrs. Hamm is also troop organizer for the school and was in charge of the school cookie sale. This is her third year in Scouting. She reports the Washington troops turned in almost $800 from the cookie sale.

Troop No. 90 made favors for a nursing home at Thanksgiving time and have done a lot of handwork during their year. They are now busy with plans for Day Camp. This is the first year in Scouting for their leader and her assistant.

Mrs. H. G. Kant, 400 Park, is the leader of Troop No. 89. Last year she was assistant leader of the troop and her assistant this year is Mrs. William Mills of 320 South Diamond, who was last year's leader. Miss Bess Krohn, an Illinois College student, has been assisting this troop with singing lessons. The girls of Troop No. 9 also spent a troop session teaching them folk dancing. They have made a number of gifts during the year. They have also made favors for Passavant hospital. Among trips taken was one to the telephone company and also to the Lucky Boy bakery. This troop, too, is now very busy with plans for camp. Most of them went last year and they are looking forward to this year's camping.

Intermediate Troop No. 9 has been registered for four years, ever since the girls were 2nd grade Brownies. They are now fifth graders and have all completed their 2nd class badge work. Their next project will be the interior decorating badge. They will have a potluck supper in May to which their parents will be invited and badges and pins will be presented at the court of awards held then. The girls will then be ready to start work on their 1st class badges.

Troop Activities

Troop No. 55 of Jefferson school, a new Brownie troop, made Easter baskets last week for patients in the male and female acute wards at the Jacksonville State hospital. Mrs. Bertha Lambert, the troop leader, delivered the baskets on Easter morning.

Mrs. C. A. Dawson, leader of Troop No. 75, will soon be leaving Jacksonville and the Intermediate Scouts of her troop are planning a series of events to close their year. Since they are 6th graders and will be leaving South Jacksonville school, Mr. Flynn, the school custodian, is treating them at their next meeting as a farewell. They also will have a supper and attend a show as a farewell for their leader.

Last Thursday night all nine girls in Troop No. 75 and Ellen Dawson of Troop No. 16 took part in graduation exercises of a Girl Scout cooking class held at the Illinois Power Company. Mrs. Velma Carroll instructed the girls. She is the home economist of the Power company. The girls prepared and served refreshments to their parents who were guests at the graduation. They learned to make many different kinds of food during their six weeks' course. Girls who completed the instruction were Nancy Dawson, Margaret Losch, Karen Letto, Nancy Pierce, Judy Powers, Peggy Jo Saunderson, Judy Stout, Barbara Taylor, Mary Bourn and Ellen Dawson.

Brownies of Troop 29 at Our Saviour's school (there are only eight of them) have been very busy making Easter favors. They made over 100 and took 40 of them to Oaklawn sanatorium at Eastertime; the rest were given to relatives and friends. The favors were three half-egg shells dyed pastel shades and glued to a paper doily atop another sheet of pastel paper. The egg shells were filled with candy. Mrs. Delbert Hayes is leader of the troop.

Intermediate Troop No. 81, Mrs. Floyd Sorrill and Mrs. George Trutter, leaders, have been concentrating on mission projects during Lent. They have collected articles to be sent to various missions in the United States and in Africa. They are studying Africa in preparation for securing pen pals in that country.

Mrs. Pryor Bossarte, a member of the troop committee, gave the girls a lesson in square dancing at a troop meeting in April. They expect to have another lesson soon. At the present time the girls are engrossed in preparations for camp this summer and are delighted with the Indian theme for camp. They are doing handwork on the Indian theme and reading of American Indian tribes.

FUTURE FASHION EXPERTS

Main entrance to High School of Fashion Industries in New York.

Like experts, students employ skill and imagination in getting together their millinery collection.

The High School of Fashion Industries was made to order for the apparel manufacturers and merchandisers of New York City. It is the only school of its kind in the country.

The pupils are prepared for all kinds of jobs in the fashion industry — designing, merchandising, men's and women's clothing, shoe and fur manufacturing, textiles, and other allied fields. Along with their vocational and technical studies, the students receive a complete high school course in English, social studies, mathematics, science, health education and music. Their school day is longer than that of others, but they apply themselves diligently and seriously, and have no trouble landing a job at the end of the four years.

Approximately 325 boys and girls graduate each year. About 80 per cent go right into fashion industry jobs. The rest continue their education in colleges and technical institutions.

First started as a two-room "School House" in 1926, with 75 students and a staff of a principal and two teachers, the school grew fast. Today it occupies a ten-story building, with a student body of some 1800 teen-age boys and girls and a teaching staff of 114. It also has an evening school for adults.

"Our school has one of the closest industry relationships in the country," says the school's principal, Dr. Nathan Brown. "We get materials, machines, money for scholarships, and advice from the companies. All our graduates get jobs unless they want to go to college or get married."

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—A decline of 25 cents a hundredweight in the butcher hog market this week was the first for any week this year.

In the 16 consecutive weeks of increases, the average price of all barrows and gilts climbed from $11.72 in the first week this year to $16.25 for the week ended April 15.

This week's setback was ascribed to larger receipts at the 12 major markets and a reduced shipper demand.

The largest cattle supply in three months went on sale this week and prices for high choice and prime grade slaughter steers slumped as much as $2.00, the steepest setback for any week since November.

Buyers said improved country roads, the end of religious holidays and last week's advance all were factors in the increased marketings. They reminded, however, that offerings during the previous week were the smallest for any week in five years.

Despite a rather sharply increases sheep supply, slaughter lambs were mostly 50 cents higher for the week after a slow and weak start. At the end of the week, demand was good by all interests.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's "spring rally" turned sour this week as prices took their worst licking in seven weeks.

Blue chips staggered downward amid mixed earnings reports from the nation's big corporations. It was a week of annual stockholders' meetings and they had little to cheer about.

Wednesday was the annual meeting of American Telephone, whose 1,754,000 shareholders comprise the biggest corporate family in the world. When the president of AT&T squelched Wall Street rumors that another dividend hike was in the offing, AT&T fell 4⅝ on the big board.

The stock started the week on a continued upbeat due to the persistent rumors that the dividend would be hiked, then it took losses for three straight days, steadying as the week ended, it closed at 89½ for a net loss of 3¾.

Unofficial but reliable reports indicated the big institutions such as mutual funds were selling considerably more stock than they were buying. At the same time, speculators seemed quite sensitive to anything but the most bullish news.

An example was the 5-point drop of Union Carbide, the second biggest chemical, Friday. The corporation reported record first quarter earnings only the day before; but profits were not rising as fast as sales and the president foresaw a probable drop in second quarter income below the comparable year ago figure. The stock was off 5 at 130¼ for the week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 2.60 to 213.50, its sharpest decline since the week ended March 5 when it dropped 7.10.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 13.80 to 616.32.

Volume totaled 14,969,137 shares compared with 10,451,000 the week before, shortened by the Good Friday recess. Compared with other full weeks, the turnover was the biggest since the week ended March 12 when 15,980,000 changed hands.

Of the 1,425 issues traded this week, 821 declined and 429 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 145 and new lows 239.

Most active issues on the New York Stock exchange was American Motors, off 1⅛ at 27¾ on 358,500 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was Anken Chemical, up 6⅝ at 44¼ on 114,500 shares.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds milled inefectually this week. Trading was dull, the volume light and, except for corporate convertibles, the price changes minor.

WEEK'S GRAIN MARKET STALLED ON DEAD CENTER

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market generally was stalled on dead center most of the time this week but some contracts ran fairly consistently toward strength and some toward weakness.

May wheat had the best support and accumulated a succession of small gains which totaled three cents by the end of the week. At the same time, soybeans were under pressure for their third straight week and fell back another cent or more on the old crop contracts.

Twice during the week May wheat climbed to within a fraction of its high for the season and both times bumped into profit taking at that level. May soybeans were at the brink of the season low on two days and seemed certain to break through but rallied slightly on scattered short covering.

At the end of the week, May wheat was one-half cent under the peak, May soybeans about a cent from the low.

A good deal of trade interest attached to the government report on grains placed in and redeemed from the price support loan program during March but it received mixed interpretations and prices reacted only narrowly.

For example, the report showing that almost 65 million bushels of corn went into the loan program during the month was called both slightly bullish and slightly bearish.

Some dealers said it confirmed earlier private advises that a large volume of the grain still held on farms is too wet to qualify for the loan or good marketable grade. They said that grain will hit commercial channels in large amounts as soon as farm operations will permit.

Other dealers said the report reflected a record disappearance of grain through livestock feeding and that farm stocks have been reduced sharply.

Redemption of 38 million bushels of wheat from the loan appeared to have a slightly bullish reception. A figure that large would have been decidedly bearish two weeks ago, brokers said. However, the estimate this week by the Department of Agriculture that exports this year will be about 40 million bushels more than expected earlier softened the blow.

At the end of the week, wheat was ¼-3 cents a bushel higher, May $2.08¼-09; corn ⅛ higher to ¼ lower, May $1.19¼; oats ⅛-1 cent higher, May .74¼; rye ⅛-1⅛ lower. May $1.20⅛; soybeans ⅛-1⅛ lower, May $2.12⅛-¼.

Accidents Occur On Morton, East Streets Friday

Richard C. Horrer, route 3, was the driver of the truck, and James Bratsch, 1256 South Main street, was the driver of the auto.

Both vehicles left the scene under their own power although the left front fender, head light, grille, tire and bumper of the truck and the left front fender, grille, bumper, left front door and left head light of the auto were damaged.

A second accident occurred at 6:25 p.m. when Paul L. Ferretti of Kansas City, Mo., going east on east Morton avenue hit a sign post on the safety island near the intersection of South East street. The bumper, left front fender and tire of the auto, a 1957 Mercury, were damaged. The auto was towed from the scene by a Lukeman wrecker.

Thomas R. Goin was going west on Morton avenue, and when the Ferretti auto hit the post it rolled on out in front of the Goin auto. Goin slammed on his brakes in time to avoid hitting the other auto, but Linda Lee Goin, a passenger in the Goin auto, hit her head on the dash when the auto stopped suddenly.

Paul Ferretti was charged with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 in Judge Daniels' court.

NIXON SAYS DEMO CANDIDATES MADE ISSUE OF RELIGION

political campaign," he said. "That would be if one of the candidates for the presidency had no religious belief.

"While the candidates in this campaign have differences on other issues, they are all men who recognize and cherish both in their personal and public lives the religious and moral principles which are the very foundation of our American ideals.

"As far as I am concerned, this fact removes any excuse for continued discussion of a so-called religious issue in this campaign."

Turning to the Big Four summit meeting, Nixon said the Western powers can anticipate it with full confidence that their leaders, rather than Khrushchev, represent the tide of history.

He said the West should look on the talks "as a chance to champion and achieve some affirmative fundamental objectives." He said the conference provides an opportunity to make at least a beginning on practical arms control, and to take the heat out of the Berlin crisis, "laying the groundwork for negotiations which would lead to a formal and definitive solution of that problem."

Nixon said Khrushchev, in dealing with the Western leaders, is certain to be influenced by "the diabolical enormity of nuclear weapons" and by a desire not to risk destruction of progress which communism has made in the Soviet Union.

"It is because the hard facts of international life are on the side of peace and disarmament," Nixon continued, "that I believe that we can look to this conference and to the future, not with starry-eyed complacency but with justifiable confidence that responsible world leaders will slowly but inevitably develop more effective methods for settling differences between nations without war."

Before he spoke, Nixon received a unanimous vote from a group of the editors as the probable GOP presidential candidate. An informal poll taken at a breakfast also voted overwhelmingly that Adlai E. Stevenson would again be the Democratic nominee.

Asked which party they expect to win the White House, the editors favored the Republicans, 45-42.

Turner Catledge, managing editor of the New York Times, was elected president of the society to succeed J. R. Wiggins, executive editor of the Washington Post.

Felix R. McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times Herald, was chosen first vice president, putting him in line to become president next year under the society's custom.

hasn't been recognized adequately by governors Green, Stevenson or Stratton."

"The situation—the criticism by the public safety director, the difficulty in coping with work connected with the Starved Rock case, and Jim Christensen's exasperation—points up a sad fact. The bureau has been a neglected stepchild among state services for 20 years.

"I hope that Gov. Stratton will check into the whole matter carefully—I know he will. And perhaps the bureau will be given funds with which Christensen could have the staff and equipment to make it comparable to the FBI laboratory."

Christensen, salaried at $705 monthly, has 33 staff members with a total monthly payroll of $12,880. Biennially, the bureau has a $412,318 budget, including $322,218 for salaries.

Hoffman said the bureau should not be shifted to State Police control as Bibb has suggested.

"It is a very great help to sheriffs and police departments of some 95 counties who depend on it." It should be directly under Director Bibb—available to state and local police agencies."

State Police Supt. William Morris said of the proposed shift:

"I want nothing to do with this." He added, the crime lab needs more and better equipment.

conferences, said the government would submit constitutional amendments to the National Assembly soon proposing the cabinin 1954.

Regardless of what the plan finally contains, there was the problem of getting it approved in the chamber where Rhee's Liberals alone are four votes short of the two-thirds margin needed to approve constitutional changes. The chamber has 152 Liberals, 72 opposition Democrats, 7 independents and 2 vacancies.

In resigning as vice president of South Korea, Democratic leader John M. Chang served notice his party will resist the proposed changes without new Assembly elections first.

Pyun told newsmen the President also probably would promise to remove police and civil servants from party politics, thus replying to long-standing criticism that Rhee's Liberals have used police to further all ends.

A key visitor seeing Rhee was Lee Ki-poong, vice president-elect, who has said he plans to resign the office he won as Rhee's running mate in the disputed March 15 election.

Lee, Rhee's top underling in the Liberal party, had been under popular pressure to step down because antigovernment demonstrators blamed him for what they labeled as rigged voting.

Report Stassen Launching Move To Stop Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Harold E. Stassen is again launching a stop-Nixon movement, this time to try to prevent the vice president from clinching the Republican presidential nomination, the Philadelphia Inquirer said Saturday night.

His first such effort came four years ago when he opposed the vice president's nomination. He won little support and eventually recanted, taking the platform at the GOP National Convention to second Nixons nomination'.

In a copyrighted story the Inquirer said the "stop-Nixon" move was an "obvious attempt" by Stassen to influence the GOP convention, "even to the extent of projecting himself" as a "possible compromise choice."

Stassen, a former governor of Minnesota and adviser to President Eisenhower, twice sought the Republican presidential nomination. Last November he was the Republican candidate for mayor of Philadelphia and lost by nearly a 2-1 margin to Mayor Richardson Dilworth. The year before he lost out in a campaign for the GOP nomination for governor of Pennsylvania. He is practicing law now and will be a delegate to the GOP convention in Chicago in July.

The Inquirer connected Stassen with what it described as a loaded questionnaire, sent to convention delegates, suggesting that Nixon cannot win the election as president in November.

According to the Inquirer, the questionnaire was distributed by Practical Surveys, a Philadelphia research organization. The president is Irvin Penner, who told the Inquirer his client was Il Popolo Italiano, an Italian-Language daily newspaper.

The Inquirer said that the editor of the paper, Mario Zuecca, had neither heard of nor ordered the survey. Penner then revealed the survey was ordered in the name of the newspaper by Alvin Diamond, a lawyer.

Diamond's telephone number, the Inquirer said, also is the one listed for Stassen's law office. Diamond was a leader of Stassen's mayoral campaign.

The Inquirer quoted Penner as having said that when he learned of the "cover-up" he stopped the survey. He refused to disclose the poll so far.

Diamond, the Inquirer said, asserted that the clients he represented where in the process of buying the Italian-language newspaper and when they took possession would make the results of the survey public.

Diamond was asked if Stassen was one of the prospective purchasers.

"So far as I know, no," he was quoted as having replied. He added that Stassen was aware of the proposed sale and the survey.

A spokesman for the newspaper acknowledged that preliminary talks concerning sale of the newspaper had taken place.

The Inquirer said it had learned those trying to get the newspaper are an Aexander Gregorian of New York and John Hoe Mack, of Philadelphia, a clerk in Stassen's office.

Stassen has not been reached for comment.

HERPETOLOGIST LEARNS HARD WAY

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—A state University of Iowa zoology student, who is studying to be a herpetologist (reptile expert), learned a little about the business the hard way. He was bitten by a snake.

Christopher Dodge, 23, of Iowa City, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday.

Dodge said he was hunting specimens in a marsh near Muscatine, when he sat down on a log to light a cigarette. Without warning, an 18-inch swamp rattler bit him on the index finger of his right hand.

After biting the wound to suck out some venom, he walked to his car. The car wouldn't start. Then he walked to a nearby farm home. No one was home.

He walked another three miles before he found a farm wife who drove him to nearby West Liberty, where he contacted a physician. He was rushed immediately to an Iowa City hospital.

Dodge was in the operating room about seven hours as doctors applied various medications to offset possible infection. Anti-snake bite serum was rushed here from Cedar Rapids by the State Highway Patrol.

Hopes Dim For Setting Cuba, U.S. Differences

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro's latest television pronouncements appeared Saturday to have wiped away any remaining hopes that critical Cuban-American differences can be settled.

Instead, Castro made the United States, its president and its secretary of state targets of new scorn that set the pattern for a fresh wave of criticism and demonstration.

Castro accused President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter of a "premeditated plan" to support an internal front against the Cuban government.

He reiterated accusations—already denied—that the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo in eastern Cuba is actively supporting insurgent bands operating in the nearby Oriente Province mountains, where Castro's own revolt developed.

His anti-American campaign appeared headed for a climax May 1, when 1½ million Cubans have been summoned to assemble here in a mass demonstration of loyalty for the revolution.

Castro's tirade against the United States came at a time when swelling dissatisfaction with his policies and promises is apparent in many areas of Cuba.

He played heavily on the danger of an armed attack—obviously, in his view, from the United States—and called for support "from the people for whom this revolution was made."

The effect of Castro's continuing attacks on the United States is apparent in the number of American residents leaving Cuba. U.S. Embassy officials estimate that 10,000 American citizens lived here when Castro's forces took over the government in 1959. This number now is down to 6,500. Half of them are expected to leave after their children finish the school term in June.

Castro scoffed at reports of insurgent action against his own regime and called his pursuit of ex-Capt. Manuel Beaton and his band in the Sierra Maestra "a police action."

There is reason to believe, however, that active opposition to Castro's way of doing things is more widespread than he admits.

A Cuban businessman returning from a trip to Oriente Province reported seven freight trucks burned out on the highway near Manillo. Similar incidents have been reported on the central highway linking Havana with the provinces.

Officials have repeatedly insisted that the trucks were destroyed by accident or fires caused by overheating.

"It looks like we are rapidly returning to conditions as they existed two years ago," said one American businessman who has watched several Cuban revolutions develop and burn out.

"I don't know," he continued, "how much real opposition Fidel Castro has. But it's definitely growing, although most of his opponents fear to express their opinions publicly just as the critics of (former President Fulgencio) Batista were silent."

Tennis-Playing Doctor Studies Players' Hearts

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The "old" man of 75 ran to a couch after the final point in a tennis tournament singles match.

There Dr. E. Sterling Nichol, Miami heart specialist, quickly recorded the electrical activity of his heart.

He took the before and after electrocardiograms on 26 men, all aged 60 to 81, who played in a special tennis tournament this year and last year.

Assistants performed the same readings on Dr. Nichol himself, who is a robust 65, and plays tennis every day. He played in the tourney but said: "I'm just garden variety in skill and didn't get very far."

The unusual electrical studies add a new bit of evidence that a normal heart is not harmed by strenuous exercise if you are used to it. Nichol reported Saturday to the American College of Sports Medicine.

Only one player showed a really significant electrical change, but his heart has an irregular beat, Nichol said. This was worsened by playing.

"Had he been my patient, I wouldn't have advised him to play," Nichol said. "But his doctor in another state tells me the man hasn't been in to see him but is seen frequently on the tennis court."

One of the 27 players has died since—from cancer.

Exercise and games played throughout life seem to safeguard the human heart, Nichol said.

Mac Murray Raps Lincoln Twice; Jacks Down Beardstown

Mac Murray Nine Displays Potent Batting Power In Twin-Bill Verdict, 13-3, 13-1

It was a big day for the Mac-Murray College Highlanders out at Nichols Park Saturday afternoon as they slammed their way to two victories against Lincoln College. The sweeping of the double header keeps the Highlanders' record clean as they have won their first three ball games.

In the first game Dave Cassady survived a shaky first inning allowing 3 runs and then went on to pitch 6 innings of shut out ball. Cassady's teammates immediately came to the rescue with their big bats giving him a two-run cushion in the second inning. This is all the Highlanders needed but the bats kept booming which resulted in 8 more runs and a big 13 to 3 victory.

The second game was scoreless until the Highlanders came to bat in the third inning. Pitcher Marv Hohenberger started the fireworks with a lead-off home run over the left center field fence. Robbie Williams then circled the bases with a single and a three-base error. Catcher Butch Anderson followed with a triple and then Don McWhorter slammed one out of the ball park.

The next inning was also a big one for the Highlanders as the bases were loaded for the grand slam blow off the bat of Ron Price. Tom Flynn also hit a round tripper and in the next inning Dan McWhorter hit his second home run of the day.

Marv Hohenberger pitched an excellent ball game, striking out 12 Lincoln batters, and allowing only 2 hits. Good all round fielding and heads up ball was the MacMurray story as the batting averages were fattened and the Highlanders walked off with the 13 to 1 victory.

Coach Dwaine Martin will put his impressive record up against Quincy College in a double header this coming Friday afternoon at Nichols Park and then the Highlanders will take on Carthage College in a double header the following day at Carthage.

Francis S has been nominated for the Preakness, second of the triple crown events on May 21.

Never Give In, from the Maine Chance farm of Elizabeth N. Graham, finished two lengths in front of the Merrick Stable's John William and it was another length and a quarter back to Edward Seinfeld's Don Rickles.

Never Give In paid $5.50 and $4.60, John William paid $5.50 to show.

New Commander finished fifth followed by Greek Page, Count Amber, Keenation, Idolater, Yorktown, Niequest, Howard G. Power Dam and Zenith.

Milwaukee Error Results In 5-4 Verdict For Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Shortstop Johnny Logan's second error of the game led to the Pittsburgh Pirates' winning run Saturday in a closely fought 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

The teams were deadlocked 4-4 going into the Pirates' seventh when leadoff batter Don Hoak reached first safely on Logan's miscue. Dick Groat sacrificed, Bob Skinner drew an intentional walk and Dick Stuart singled home Hoak with the unearned deciding run.

Joe Gibbon, third Pirate pitcher, picked up his second straight triumph of the season. Lew Burdette, who went the distance for Milwaukee, absorbed his first loss against one victory.

It was the second straight Pirate decision over the Braves and their fourth victory in a row.

John Thomas Soars To 7 ft. ½ in. In High Jump

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Spaceman John Thomas, 19-year-old Boston University sophomore, Saturday bettered the NCAA high jump record and equalled the American mark with a leap of seven feet, one-half inch.

Despite a sudden weather change, Thomas topped the accepted outdoor collegiate record of 7 feet even established by Southern California's Charlie Dumas on May 2, 1959. Dumas also set the American mark of 7-½.

When the temperature took a sudden dip to 40 degrees and a chill wind stirred, the high jump was delayed in the Boston University-Dartmouth dual track meet.

Thomas' foot slipped twice on the soft takeoff soil at the 7-½ height and the result was two poor jumps. On the third try, Thomas cleared the bar easily. The bar trembled—then held—for the thrill which the 3,000 fans had anticipated.

Thomas made three tries at 7-1½ which would have topped the world standard of 7-1 by Russia's Yuri Stepanov but failed. His best effort was the second jump when he made it over but had taken off too close and kicked the bar off its moorings coming down.

Runs Fastest American Mile

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Dyrol Burleson of Oregon summoned a final burst of speed and ran the mile in 3:58.6 Saturday, the fastest ever run by an American.

The slender 19-year-old trailed for three laps, then hurtled past Stanford's Ernie Cunliffe and won by 15 yards.

The world record is 3.54.5, set by Australia's Herb Elliott.

In winning, Burleson not only ran the mile faster than any countryman ever had before, he added luster to his brilliant Olympic promise.

He is the first American runner to meet the Olympic qualifying standard for the 1500 meters at Rome. A runner must do the 1,500 meters in 3:45 or the mile in 4:02.0 this year to be able to compete in the 1960 Olympics, Aug. 25-Sept. 10. Besides that, he must finish 1-2-3 in the U.S. Olympics trials.

The Burleson-Cunliffe duel came off in the Oregon-Stanford track meet. The track was fast.

Cunliffe, a senior who was bloomed as a miler in the past year, set the pace through most of the race. He finished in 4:00.4, also qualifying for the Olympics.

Cunliffe's lap times were 62 seconds, 2:02 and 3:01, with Burleson dogging his steps by two or three strides.

Cunliffe still was ahead as he entered the final turn. Then Burleson opened up and passed Cunliffe on the outside.

Burleson's best previous outdoor time this season was 4:16.1. But he ran an indoor mile in 4:05.4 earlier this year. Last year, he won the mile in the U.S.-Russian meet, the AAU and Pan American Games.

Elliott holds the record for the best mile run in America, 3:57.8 in Los Angeles in May 1958.

The previous best mile by an American was run by Don Bowden of the University of California. His time in a 1957 meet in Stockton, Calif., was 3:58.7.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Neighbors provided C. R. Marshall with a genuine surprise when he was moving from one apartment to another.

BIGGER THAN FRYING PAN

Frank Matijevich, Sr., a resident of Florida came to the Land of Lincoln to visit his son, Frank, Jr., of 512 East Morton and promptly landed the prize catch of the day Saturday afternoon. The elder Matijevich is pictured above holding his one pound-14 ounce crappie which measured 15 inches in length. The two anglers said fishing was pretty good—they used seven dozen minnows—but they wouldn't disclose where they landed their stringers of crappies. Frank said he would give out tips here and there to interested fishermen at his Bait Shop.

Cardinals Annex 3rd Straight With 9-5 Win Over Dodgers

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made it three straight Saturday with Ken Boyer's five runs batted in on two homers and a double and Bob Duliba's tight relief pitching pacing a 9-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Redbirds spotted the Dodgers a 4-0 lead, then boomed back, knocking out starter Danny McDevitt and World Series hero Larry Sherry in a 12-hit assault.

Duliba held the Dodgers to just one run through the last five innings on four hits to get his first major league victory. The chunky right-hander from Glen Lynon, Pa., also delivered his first big league hit in a decisive four-run sixth inning.

St. Louis pinned the defeat on Sherry, second of four Dodger pitchers.

JHS Garners Pair Of 1st In Quincy Relays

QUINCY—Shannon Jackson and Mal Portee earned firsts for Coach Al Rosenberger's JHS Crimsons in the annual Quincy Relays this weekend. In Class A competition the Jacks settled for sixth place in the seven-team field, which produced a total of eight new records for the annual affair.

JHS' individual performers came through in grand style but the relay entries didn't fare as well as expected.

John Bourn of the Crimsons pushed his pole vault record up to 11 feet, three inches in placing second in this event. The old Quincy Relay record was 11 feet even but it was bettered by Bourn and by Litchfield of Macomb who soared to 11 feet, six inches.

Shag Jackson took the high jump with a leap of five feet, eight inches. Mal Portee, who is undefeated in the broad jump this season, won his specialty with a mark of 20 feet, 1 inch. The Quincy meet record is held by Bobby Watts, former Crimson, with a jump of 20 feet, 9 inches.

PIGS FIND BUILT-IN DAIRY BAR

WARRENS, Wis. (AP) — When the production of his dairy herd began to drop Ben Nemitz began to look for answers.

But he had other problems, 30 recently arrived little pigs.

The production problem was solved when Nemitz walked into the barn to find four of the pigs standing on their hind legs to serve themselves at nature's dairy bar.

Florida still has large wilderness areas where hunters find black bears, panthers and alligators.

Baltimore Falls Before Yanks, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Short, New York's prized rookie pitching prospect, and veteran fireman Ryne Duren, teamed up Saturday for a five-hit, 3-2 victory over the sagging Baltimore Orioles.

Hector Lopez' single drove in what proved to be the Yanks' winning run in the fifth inning. Tony Kubek's single, Short's sacrifice bunt and Lopez' single accounted for the winners' third run. They had scored twice in the first.

It was the Yankees' third straight triumph but their pitchers' string of shutout innings was snapped at 24 in the sixth inning when the Orioles scored their first run.

Consecutive singles by the first two batters, Brooks Robinson and Willie Tasby, and Joe Ginsberg's double play grounder, brought Baltimore its first run.

Athletics Nudge Cleveland, 6-5

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Bauer's ninth inning single drove in Bill Tuttle and gave the Kansas City Athletics a 6-5 victory Saturday over the Cleveland Indians who have dropped all four of their starts in the American League.

Bauer's smash into the left field screen came off a pitch by Bob Grim, ex-A's pitcher who was traded to Cleveland for pitcher Leo Kiely during spring training.

Marty Kutyna, who pitched only the ninth inning, was the winner. He came on in relief for George Brunet, third A's hurler, after Cleveland had scored five times off starter Dick Hall and Bob Trowbridge.

The hapless Indians lost despite a 13-hit attack that included a home run by their Giant rookie outfielder, Walt Bond.

Reggie Robertson, the losing hurler, walked five and struck out 11 Crimsons. The only player in the JHS lineup to get to Robertson for two hits was Larry Darwent. All of the hits were of the singles variety with the exception of Ron Tomhave's double, the game's only extra base knock.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie catcher Jim Coker hit a double to center in the 13th inning Saturday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati, the second victory in their four-game series.

Coker also batted in the Phils' tying run with a single in the seventh.

The game was a six-hitter for each team through nine innings. The Phillies held a one-run lead through six innings.

Detroit Pushes String To Four Straight In 6-2 Win Over Chisox

DETROIT (AP) — Home run sluggers Rocky Colavito and Steve Bilko supported Frank Lary's strong pitching Saturday and the Detroit Tigers ran their unbeaten streak to four games with a 6-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Colavito smashed a three-run blast off Ray Moore, his third in the last three games, and Bilko connected with one aboard off starter Billy Pierce. It was Bilko's second in two days.

Lary doled out only four hits and the only damaging blow was Minnie Minoso's third home run. It came in the eighth inning and followed a walk to pinch hitter Earl Torgeson.

The Tigers, lone undefeated team in the major leagues, now have hit eight home runs in their last three games. Newcomers Colavito, Bilko and Chico Fernandez accounted for six of Detroit's eight safeties. Fernandez, the slick-fielding shortstop regarded as a near-automatic out at the plate, had a double and two singles.

Willie Kirkland had a perfect day at the plate with three singles and a double in four official trips.

Jack Sanford went the route for his first victory, yielding five hits, as the Giants collected their third straight triumph and extended the Cubs losing streak through five games.

The Giants teed off against five Cub hurlers, disposing of loser Dick Drott after four innings and a 7-0 lead.

Malzone also cracked out a run-scoring single while the Sox piled up a 5-0 lead and chased Pascual after five innings. Thomson's first American League homer, coming in the eighth inning, was belted off reliever Don Lee.

Bob Allison, hitting in his sixth straight game, led the Senators with a double and single in four trips but his average dropped from .591 to .577. His double in the fifth drove in two runs when Washington chased Boston starter Tom Brewer. Reliever Mike Fornieles got the victory.

CLEVELAND—(NEA)—The announcement that the Indians had traded Rocco Domenico Colavito to the Tigers for Harvey Edward Kuenn stopped every baseball park in the land.

The first reaction in the press boxes was that Frank Lane, the Cleveland general manager who engineered the swap, definitely was in need of psychiatric treatments.

"Lane was bored," said the teletype operator seated next to me, "and decided to stir up the first excitement in baseball this year."

That Trader Lane most certainly did when he swapped Rocky Colavito, the darling of Cleveland fans, to Detroit, just across the lake, for Kuenn.

Many tremendous baseball deals have been consummated, but you have to go back 33 years to find a transaction with the impact of this one. That takes you back to Dec. 20, 1926, when the St. Louis Cardinals sent the great Rogers Hornsby to the New York Giants for Frank Frisch and Pitcher Jimmy Ring.

Not that Colavito and Kuenn will ever attain the playing stature of Hornsby and Frisch, but never before has the home-run champion of a major league been exchanged for the batting champion. Making the trade whack you even harder between the eyes was the timing—just two days before the clubs involved were to open the season in Cleveland.

After this one, Lane trading the once-so-promising Herb Score to the White Sox the very next day for Barry Latman, big, young and strong right-hander, went almost unnoticed.

The first baseball man I talked to after getting the news regarding Colavito and Kuenn was Billy Jurges, manager of the Red Sox.

"All I can say is that it took a lot of intestinal fortitude to make a deal like that," said the old National League shortstop.

Vic Wertz, the veteran American League outfielder-first baseman now with the Boston club, quickly put the finger on what prompted the swap.

"Lane and Gordon (Manager Joe) must have tremendous faith in Walter Bond," said Wertz.

Bond is the amazing 6-foot 6½-inch, 225-pound 22-year-old who popped up out of nowhere to swat a half-dozen tape-measure home runs while batting a long ton in exhibition games.

"Lane traded away 63 home runs and 203 runs-batted-in shipping Colavito to the Tigers and Minnie Minoso to the White Sox," Wertz went on. "That's a lot of power to give away. So, you see, Lane and Gordon must feel sure that Bond will keep right on going. Now I am told that Bond is still a little awkward in the outfield, so it is my opinion that Lane and Gordon decided to get an established outfielder to play alongside him."

Wertz should have said that Lane and Gordon were looking for an accomplished flychaser to play between Tito Francona, who can do the least damage in left field, and Bond, whom they feel should not be saddled with the perplexities of center at the outset. The deal had hardly been closed when Gordon announced that Kuenn would open in center and Bond in right. Once the big guy with the 15-foot stride finds his way around, provided he keeps swatting the ball for magnificent distances, the two can switch.

The more you dug into the Colavito-Kuenn deal the more you suspected that maybe Lane knew what he was doing.

"I'll tell you one thing," said Casey Stengel of the Yankees, "Lane didn't deal Colavito for a bum. That feller (Kuenn) has been making 200 hits a year since he came out of the University of Wisconsin and the Three-Eye League in 1953. There are faster runners, but this is a right-hand hitter leaning forward like Rogers Hornsby when he hits the ball and going to first base the same way. He isn't exactly a base-stealer, but he moves guys along."

"Would I have traded Colavito for Kuenn?" asked Bill Skiff, chief of Yankee scouts. "I'm paid to give advice to the Yankees, but I'll answer that one and you can quote me. I'd have traded Colavito for Kuenn in a minute."

Leaving out the personalities, Lane's sensible argument is that Colavito's home runs helped the club most at the bucks office. When the Indians were pursuing the White Sox last fall, Colavito hit just one home run in four weeks. He wasn't much help getting runs across in close games, had a strong, but scatter arm, and didn't respond to coaching. Kuenn, on the other hand, is the complete ballplayer.

This is the most daring of the more than 60 trades Frank Lane has made since taking charge of the Indians in November of 1957.

There will be frightening repercussions if big Walter Bond stops hitting.

Blueboys Defeated By Central Missouri, 10-5

The I.C. Blueboys were handed a home game defeat Saturday afternoon at the hands of Central Missouri by a 10-5 showing. Schellhardt went the whole distance for the visitors while giving up 13 hits and 5 runs. Ken Mock took the mound for the Hilltoppers and kept the Blueboys in the game for the first four innings, as I. C. held the lead for three of these and kept abreast in the 4th inning with the score standing 4 runs all.

In the fifth inning a home-run by Heidmann started a CM rally, and the hosts were left in the dust as Central managed to accumulate one or two runs per inning for the rest of the game.

Later in the 8th inning Heidmann again put the ball over deep left-center and rounded the bags for another homer. A third round-trip was handed Mock by Hall in the opening inning.

For the Blueboys Bob Volk came up with the only 3 bagger with nobody on, and the Brookmen came up with 12 men left on base. On two different occasions the Blueboys had the bases loaded, once in the 6th, and once in the 9th inning, but heads up fielding retired the host squad to the bench without capitalizing on the situation.

The winning pitcher handed out 3 free bases with Mock giving up 4 BB's. In the strike out department the winning man, Schellharde, held the slight edge with 8 over 4 by Mock.

The next tilt for the Blueboys will be on Tuesday, April 26, on the Hilltoppers diamond.

Riegger won several top events at the 1959 Grand American Tournament.

Liston, Harris Clash Monday

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Sonny Liston and Roy Harris match their near-perfect heavyweight records against each other Monday night in a 10-rounder to be carried by television as the main event on live cards in 10 other cities in seven states.

Listons power makes him the popular choice. A Texas record gate in excess of $70,000 is indicated for the bout which has been billed as the final of an elimination tournament to select an unofficial logical challenger to meet the winner of the June title fight between Champion Ingemar Johansson and former Champion Floyd Patterson.

The 10 p.m. (EST) bout will be carried by closed circuit television in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Baltimore, Atlanta, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Mobile, Ala., Dallas, San Antonio, and Odessa, Tex.

Suggs Increases Dallas Lead

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Louise Suggs defied high winds again Saturday and shot a par 71, increasing her lead to five strokes in the $10,000 Dallas Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Her 211 for 54 holes gave her a strong prop on a second consecutive Dallas title. The final round is Sunday.

Miss Suggs, the smooth swinger from Atlanta, barely missed bagging the $10,000 offered for a hole-in-one on a par 3 hole. On the 207-yard third hole her tee shot stopped only a couple of inches from the pin.

Mickey Wright, from San Diego, moved into second place with a 72 for 216. In a tie for third were Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S. C., and Ruthie Jessen of Seattle, each with 218. Miss Jessen had a 72, Miss Rawls a 73 Saturday.

Wiffi Smith of St. Clair, Mich., who started the third round in second place three strokes back of Miss Suggs, skidded to a 78 and fell down to fifth at 221.

HOUSTON GOLF CLASSIC OPENS THIS THURSDAY

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The $35,000 Houston Golf Classic, the tournament that began making money after accepting a dare, opens Thursday on the sprawling Memorial Park course.

More than $92,000 in advance ticket sales income already is on hand. Funds for another summer golf clinic program for Houston area kids are assured. It has been that way ever since R. E. (Bob) Smith, an oilman, in 1953 dared the sponsoring Houston Golf Assn. to boost the tournaments prize money from $15,000 to $25,000.

Smith promised to make up any losses. Another dare added another $10,000 in 1954.

The dares have not cost Smith a penny.

LEARNING COMES EASY

REDDINGTON BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Billy Schumacher, 10, and his sister, Mary Margaret, 3, could hardly wait for their daily tutor, Mrs. Emile Baum. Lessons came easy because each day was topped off with a shell-making session.

Billy and Mary made pelicans, cranes, flamingoes, elephants, horses, frogs, penguins and dogs out of sea shells, pipe cleaners and glue. A dab of paint and each animal had eyes.

The children spent six weeks here with their father, Hal Schumacher, former New York Giant pitcher, made the rounds taking major league orders for baseball bats.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

Nichols Ball Park will get another face-lifting today (Sunday) when YMCA Basketball Committee members gather at the diamond at 2: 00 p.m. to make repairs on the field and bleachers in the grandstand. The Committee would appreciate all the help they can get! With the south section of bleachers all down and grass already planted there, the Park will be in fine shape for the May 31 opener in the YMCA sponsored Colt and Pony Leagues.

—O—

Today, the workers hope to replace the old boards in the remaining section and make the necessary repairs on the end railings. They also want to get the scoreboard out of left center field and move it to where the former bleachers stood on the south. They would like to get into the building of the dugouts but time probably won't permit since the wire screening where the fence juts out at the first and third base lines has to be cut and hog-ringed so that the light poles at these two stations can be moved in the near future.

—O—

There are a million and one things to do to get the Park in operating order so you can see why all volunteers would be greatly accepted. And there is a very good reason for all this effort on the part of the older men who are interested in having a better place for the youngsters to play baseball. In a week's time, Russ Vernor, chairman of the YMCA summer baseball program, has raised enough money through donations to order 25 additional lights which would increase the lighting another 40,000 wattage and this would give Nichols Ball Park around 80,000 watts, better than most minor leagues parks have. Each new one will consist of a 1500 watt light with inner-reflector rings such as those now on the outfield poles.

—O—

Notes of thanks will be written when all the projects are completed this spring at the southside baseball plant. Now for the unassigned youngsters who wish to play this year, there will be tryouts this week at Nichols Park. Pony League boys will work out Monday and Tuesday starting at 6:15 p.m. each evening until 9:00 p.m. The same time will prevail for Colt League trials Wednesday evening. Boys are asked to bring their own shoes and gloves.

—O—

Six teams will compete in the Central Valley Softball League this summer at Murrayville according to word received here Friday. There will be six games a week, two each evening on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights with sessions starting at seven and 9:00 p.m. The tentative starting date has been set up for May 17.

Teams entered are Jacksonville State Hospital (Ed Killam); Alton Dominos (Jim DeMunbrun); Merkels of Quincy (Seymour Lenses); Murrayville (Verbie Spencer); Loami (Bill Barton) and Farm Service of Jacksonville (Fred Hill). Team managers are in parentheses. There will be no admission charge for the games.

— O —

You've heard of the old college spirit. Well, it happens in high school circles as well. It came to life Friday night when two Crimson relay members, Jim Hurst and Ed Young, had to go all out in order to compete in the Quincy Relays. Hurst couldn't get excused from school in time and had to drive his own car over when school let out. Ed Young was in Centralia competing in the State Music Contest and had to be driven to Quincy from Jacksonville by Art Yates. The 210 mile jaunt including the bus trip from Centralia to Jacksonville seemed to take a lot of stamina out of Ed. But we'll give both lads a big E for effort.

Today Is 'C' Day In Local Cancer Drive

Today is "C" Day — the day when the Cancer Crusade moves into whirl-wind velocity, according to Crusade chairman, Don G. Fiedler at American Cancer Society headquarters here.

"This is our concentrated give-and-take drive," said Mr. Fiedler. "In a few short hours, beginning at 1:00 o'clock over three hundred volunteers will knock on every door in the city of Jacksonville and Morgan county. They will give every family in the community the life-saving facts about cancer. And they will take away with them, we hope, the most generous possible contributions to support the Society's programs of research, service and education.

"We call our house-to-house operation C-Day, obviously because the C stands for cancer and control. It also stands for ultimate conquest.

"We know we can increase the control of the disease right now, because we aren't getting the maximum number of cures possible. We should be saving one of every two cancer patients; we are actually saving only one in three. Some 85,000 Americans died of cancer last year without need, simply because the tumor was diagnosed too late. So that is our immediate goal —to save these people by teaching them the facts of cancer.

"Meanwhile our long-range offensive against this enemy has been accelerated and the outlook is exciting and very hopeful. We know now that we can conquer cancer. It's just a question of time—and money. Money to keep the wheels of science turning until the work is finished."

Mr. Fiedler spoke with warmth and gratitude about the large number of volunteers who will march this afternoon, "those public spirited citizens who have made the intensive effort of C-Day possible."

He urged everybody to answer the knock or ring of the Cancer Crusader. "Accept our literature and follow it's life-saving advice," the chairman urged. "And give as much as you can to fight this ancient enemy of mankind which continues to be the second cause of death in the United States today."

Pittsfield Band Gets Surprise Reception

PITTSFIELD — Local citizens turned out en masse Saturday to welcome home an unsuspecting group of musicians as it returned home from a music contest. The citizens were relatives and friends and the group was the Pittsfield High School Band which received a superior rating at State Music Contest Friday and Saturday at Eastern Illinois University at Charleston, Ill. Reports from the contest say the Pittsfield entry was the only one out of 15 bands which received a superior rating in all phases of the required performance work.

The students returned home, unaware of their superior rating until the cheering, horn tooting crowd of friends greeted them as they arrived in Pittsfield. The reception was arranged by Band Director Paul Rosene, who sent word ahead by telephone, while keeping it secret from the band members.

Superior ratings were also awarded to four ensemble groups: Fred Kern for a piano solo, Kay Willard for a vocal solo, Dale Foster for a trombone solo, and Phyllis Peters and Peggy Farrell for a flute-French horn duet.

TOWN IN NAME ONLY

DELLVIEW, N. C. (AP) — This hamlet, incorporated in 1925, has no bonded debt, no taxes, no water bills. Police Chief Tom Dellinger never has made an arrest. His wife Ola is town clerk, but she has nothing to do.

Dellinger never has had any births or deaths. Its 1960 population was four, a decrease of three from 1950 because that many members of the town's two families moved away.

Why did Dellview ever bother with incorporation? Tom Dellinger explains that his late brother David, a member of the State House of Representatives, put it through the Legislature because the family had a poultry farm and wanted to put up legal barrier against marauding stray dogs.

Big U.S. Melting Pot Is Welding House Of Luther

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The house of Lutheranism, split by many different ethnic backgrounds, is being welded together now by the impact of Americanization.

"The American melting pot has exerted its influence," said the Rev. Dr. Frederik A. Schiotz, president of the newly merged American Lutheran Church.

Old lines of national distinction are fast fading. Once kept apart by their different ancestral cultures, despite a common faith, Lutherans are now bridging the barrier of descent.

This transition was pointed up here in a convention merging Lutheran churches of German, Danish and Norwegian origin, the first such step in the United States of its scope.

Better modes of communication, and mobility of the population, has brought a fusing of the various groups, Dr. Schiotz said. "Looking to the future, we must take our place as a fully responsible American church."

The newly unified denomination, in a message to its 2¼ million members, expressed hope for a "larger understanding of the fellowship" of all Christians, and for peace and unity among them.

"We thank God for the guidance of his Holy Spirit which has brought us to this present demonstration of the oneness of believers in Christ," the message said, adding:

"We stand recommitted to proclaim the forgiving love of God, to an expanding witness at home and abroad of a divine redemption, to a deeper concern for those afflicted by unjust social situations and political systems, to a larger understanding of the fellowship of all believers in Christ, and to the realization of the prayer of our Savior, 'that they may all be one.'"

Teacher's Meet

Forty members of the Scott County Teacher's Association met for their annual spring dinner meeting this past week at the Hotel Winchester with R. R. Rueb, president, presiding. He presented the speaker of the evening, Rev. Lee Anthony of Quincy, minister of the Quincy Ellington Presbyterian Church and teacher of the 6th grade at Webster Jr. High School. Rev. Anthony also has had ten years of newspaper and radio work, formerly giving the community news over radio station WTAD at Quincy. Mr. Rueb, in introducing Rev. Anthony, called him one of the greatest humanitarians of Western Illinois for his work and the giving of his time around Quincy.

The teachers were greatly impressed with the Rev. Anthony's speech in which he brought out the problems the world now faces and stated it is the teachers who have an opportunity in the classroom to bring out these grave problems, and to interest and motivate the leaders of tomorrow. He stated that the tests for children should not be for the grade's sake but for the students to test themselves—to try to compete with himself to let them see their own improvement. Equal opportunity for everyone, if they have ability, regardless of race, is what the speaker said he would like to see. Stress, he said, causes most of all the diseases of mankind—we should all have a negative attitude of mind and learn to live in a world with out strain.

During the business meeting the Nominating Committee composed of Thomas Springer, Mary Gillham and Norma Korty, presented the following slate of officers for the ensuing year: president, Ruby Bridgeman of Bluffs; vice president, Lee Barrow of Alsey; secretary, Ann Bealmer of Manchester; treasurer, Esta Lou Hubbert of Winchester. THE 1960 4-H tractor safety and maintenance school closed with Family Night at Farm Bureau hall Tuesday evening. The 16 students gave demonstrations to show some of the lessons they had learned.

The annual school was twice postponed, due to heavy snows; but got underway on March 22. The classes met four consecutive Tuesday evenings at the Baumann & Son implement shop on East Morgan street, and closed with the demonstrations Tuesday evening.

In the first photo Randy and Dicky DeOrnellas of the North Side Ag club shows some of the factors of safety. The tractor with the wider wheel base clings to the incline as the one with its driving wheels closer together overturns.

In the second picture Roger Houston, also of the North Side club, used a home-made contrivance to show how the viscosity of various grades of lubricating oil affects piston performance.

Next, John Scott of the Franklin Straight Shooters demonstrates the right and the wrong way of detaching or attaching individual chain links. (This is a trick many older farmers have never learned; ordinarily they get the job done by using plenty of time and profanity, plus a skinned knuckle or a smashed finger.)

Picture No. 4 was taken as Mickey DeOrnellas of the Nortonville Ag club uses a simple, home-made apparatus to clearly show how various grades of motor oil reduce friction.

And in the last picture Melvin Thies of the East Side Juniors and Jim Crouse of the Waverly Hustlers show the proper way to adjust a plow moldboard.

Others who completed the annual course by giving demonstrations were Allan Anderson, Victory Ag; Ronald Tomhave and Kenneth Hess, North Side Ag; Johnny Heaton and Ronnie Leavell, Lynnville Hustlers; Steve Richardson, David Mattson, Dick Hembrough, Jim Scott and Charles Richardson, East Side Juniors.

Jim Carter of the Standard Oil company furnished doughnuts and milk at each of the four class meetings, and also for Family Night.

Hormone Impairs Reproduction In Heifers

URBANA — Farmers who breed beef heifers that have received Synovex-H will find that it's not such a good idea.

University of Illinois beef cattle tests show that this hormone seriously impairs breeding ability.

In the tests, research worker George E. Mitchell, Jr., gave Synovex-H implants to a group of 24 heifers. He placed these heifers and a group of 20 "control" heifers on similar rations. All of the animals were on feed for 112 days. During the feeding period, implanted heifers outgained control heifers by an 11 per cent margin.

The implants, however, produced irregularities in the estrus cycle of every treated heifer. They did not affect all of the animals in the same way. Some heifers came into heat repeatedly every three to ten days. Some never came into heat. Others had cycles of normal length mixed with irregular cycles.

To further check the effect of Synovex-H, the workers placed a bull with heifers in heat during the last six weeks of feeding. Later eight of these implanted heifers were slaughtered. Only one showed evidence of pregnancy.

On the basis of this test, Mitchell and his co-workers still recommend Synovex-H as an implant for heifers. But they do not advise breeding heifers that have received implants.

The University of Illinois beef cattlemen believe that stilbestrol may have similar effects on breeding beef heifers.

Corn Price Up This Summer: Hieronymus

Corn prices are likely to show weakness for the next 30 to 60 days and then climb up to the loan redemption price by midsummer, a University of Illinois agricultural economist said this week.

Speaking before the Illinois Grain Dealers' Management conference, T. A. Hieronymus listed these factors in the current grain market picture:

Wet corn still appears to be a problem on some farms. It must be sold soon. Sale of this corn will probably cause a soft market during the next 30 to 60 days.

Farmers will probably put enough corn into loan to force prices up to the redemption rate by summer. This will be about 5 to 7 cents a bushel above the current price.

Farm stocks are higher than they were a year ago on April 1. But it appears that corn is being used about 8 per cent faster this year than last.

Even with reduced hog production, Hieronymus expects that corn use for the marketing year ending Oct. 1 will top 4 billion bushels, a new record. But with the huge 1959 crop, the carryover will be large and surplus build-up will continue.

Agricultural Policies Of 'Common Market' Worry U. S. Officials

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A developing agricultural revolution in Western Europe poses a threat to the export markets of American agriculture.

This revolution centers largely in the six countries which joined together in 1957 to form the European Economic Community for the purpose of establishing a common market. They are Belgium, France, Western Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

These countries have worked out proposals intended to encourage improvements in their agricultures, to merge the six agricultural markets, and to unify farm policies and programs.

Using modern technological developments, the Common Market area could greatly expand its food production. It might become, in time, a sizeable exporter instead of a net importer.

The situation is being regarded with concern at the Agriculture Department—but just how much is concealed in an analysis of the prospects by production and trade experts. The analysis could have an impact on the attitude of Congress toward new farm legislation.

When word of the study reached newsmen, Deputy Administrator Raymond B. Ioanes of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service declined to make it public.

More Rigid Controls

A successful agricultural program along lines now envisioned by the Common Market countries could cut a large chunk out of U.S. export markets, aggravate surplus problems and possiby develop strong support for a return in the United States to more rigid farm production control programs.

The Western European farm program will seek to cure one of the basic weaknesses of agriculture there, the division of farm land into many small, inefficient units. Consolidation is going forward rapidly and with it mechanization is supplanting hand and animal draft power. Production skyrockets.

This program calls for elimination of all trade barriers among the six Common Market countries. Under this new setup, commodities could move freely, just as they do among the states in this country.

U. S. Concept Hit

The proposal that troubles farm leaders in this country perhaps the most is the Common Market goal of obtaining self-sufficiency in production of most foods and an exportable surplus in some others. Such a program moves away from the principle of freer trade being preached by this country. Under the free trade concept, each area would be encouraged to produce those things it can produce most efficiently and cheaply.

In the case of most farm products, European production will be more costly than in the major agricultural exporting countries of the world. In order to achieve the self-sufficiency, the Common Market countries plan to employ high-level price supports and incentives and import barriers to keep out cheaper products produced in this and in other countries.

The program also envisions the payment of subsidies to move any surpluses into export markets.

Thirty years ago U. S. ranchers and farmers produced only enough cattle to provide 50 pounds of beef per person in a year—less than a pound a week. There was much talk then about overproduction. Now U.S. cattlemen supply enough beef to provide 80 pounds per person. This is 60 percent more than in 1929.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Spring has surely arrived in southern Illinois. At any rate, Bill Luckmann and Jim Sanford of the State Natural History Survey are confident that it is sweet corn planting time. Last week these fellows were busy marking off plots and planting sweet corn on the Lewis Wells tract on the Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

New Phase of Research

The plots on the Lewis Wells tract mark the start of another new phase on the Station. For it is on this area, a south slope near a farm pond, that the Department of Horticulture will carry on studies with small fruits and vegetables. The nearby farm pond will serve as a source of water if irrigation is wanted or needed.

In connection with this phase of work Bill Courter, extension horticulturist for southern Illinois, will move with his family to the Station this summer. A new home is to be built for the Courter family. Until now Bill has been operating from Urbana, and he has already established on the Station some of the finest strawberry varieties we have seen in a long time. The berries will bear for the first time this spring.

Study Corn Earworm

The sweet corn that Luckmann and Sanford have planted is in the interest of a study of the egg-laying habits of the corn earworm. The researchers are interested in learning the relation between corn development and egg laying of the corn earworm.

The area selected for the study should grow excellent sweet corn and vegetables. It was a fescue and ladino clover sod that resulted in exceptionally good soil tilth and an abundance of root organic matter. But, as in any sod, white grubs were plentiful, so the ground was sprayed with aldrin before plowing.

Luckmann and Sanford will spray for grass and weed control, using a pre-emergence broadcast spray of simazine at the rate of three pounds per acre. With this treatment they do not anticipate a need for cultivation.

This and That

It's a busy time on the Station. Tours are getting under way in earnest, ground is being prepared for planting corn, cattle and sheep are being weighed onto experimental pastures, breeding cow herds are being made up, fertilizer is being spread, manure is being hauled, the quarter horses are foaling, bulls are being selected for sale on April 19, the last of the saw logs from the timber are being sawed, it's tree-planting time, gradening time, and the fish in the ponds are begging for a play.

Installment Plan Used For More Farm Land Sales

URBANA—Buyers and sellers of Illinois farm land are finding installment contracts to their mutual advantage.

Dividing payments over several years provides income tax savings to sellers. And buyers who are short of funds might not be able to acquire land if they could not arrange for installment terms.

N. G. P. Krausz, University of Illinois professor of agricultural law, recently completed a field study of 43 installment land contracts.

He reports that in three of these contracts no down payment was made. The rest provided for down payments ranging up to 25 percent of the total sale value.

Lengths of contracts varied, but the majority ran from 5 to 20 years. About half allowed unlimited prepayment privileges. Annual interest on the unpaid balance varied from none to 5½ percent.

Krausz found that those entering into the contracts usually had an attorney draw up the contract.

All parties to land contracts feel that it is very important to be able to get along well with the other party. Krausz observes that in some cases too much faith has been placed in the integrity and fairness of the other person and written agreements have not been clear or comprehensive enough.

With long-term contracts, one party may not live until the whole contract term is completed. The other party may have to deal with the spouse, heir or administrator of an estate. For this reason clear and complete written contracts are the best policy, Krausz concludes.

Rare In Our Time

President Charles de Gaulle's visit to the United States gives Americans their first opportunity to pay fitting honor to one of the free world's authentic heroes.

He is, in the eyes of all, the embodiment of the spirit of France at its best. His courage and his steadfast adherence to the image of a Free France held together the remnants of a great country in World War II. Unhappily, at that time these very qualities earned him scorn and even some ridicule from other Allied leaders.

But when De Gaulle re-emerged as the genuine savior of his country in 1958, in the depths of its crisis of indecision and virtual government panic, he was seen more clearly for what he really is.

Today we can understand him as a man who first preserved the shape if not the substance of a once-great free nation and now is desperately engaged in the effort to restore its substance.

As the United States recognizes that its own safety and well-being are inseparately linked with those of all other free peoples, so we must herald both the wartime and the postwar labors of this dedicated servant of freedom.

We, as well as France, are deeply fortunate that there is a Charles de Gaulle. Without him the French might not have clung to those shreds of spirit from which they finally wove astonishing revival.

Without him the painfully disruptive effects of government indecision might have made France the inevitable prey of a waiting Russian communism.

As he moves among us in this all-too-short visit we therefore can look upon him with gratitude and appreciation.

We can also look with awe at one of the truly great figures of the age and, with no little wonderment, at a man who by some curious alchemy manages to exalt principle and still get things done.

That accomplishment alone makes him a rarity in this troubled time—a man worth staring at while he is in our midst.

Of Primary Importance

The arguments that rage against the worth of the presidential primaries have about them a strange sort of incomplete logic.

Some of the contentions, of course, are utterly trivial. They include former President Truman's comments that primaries are "eyewash" and merely something for the newsmen to get excited about. Perhaps he would have been more impressed had he done better in those he entered.

The custom of the earnest critics is to point out the flaws in the primary system—the fact that relatively few have binding effect on national convention delegates, that fantastic variations exist from state to state, that only a third of the states have primaries, that not all major candidates can usually be persuaded to enter these tests.

All these weaknesses are thoroughly evident. But those who high light them to support their case against the primaries fail in one major regard. They do not offer a superior alternative.

Sir Winston Churchill conceded once that democracy as a system of governing is weighted down with incredible disadvantages. But he added that it has one supreme virtue: all the other systems are worse.

So it is, it would seem, with the primaries. The other ways of picking a president are worse. No matter what fine words may be brought to bear, the unvarnished fact is that the choice—without the impact of primaries—goes inevitably back to the political hardhats and the smoke-filled room.

The primaries are imperfect guides but they are the only ones we have. The wise course would possibly be to make them better, not to abandon them.

Anyone who imagines they are without effect has never talked to professional politicians who really know their business. They await the primary signs as a Navajo communications sergeant scans the horizon for smoke signals.

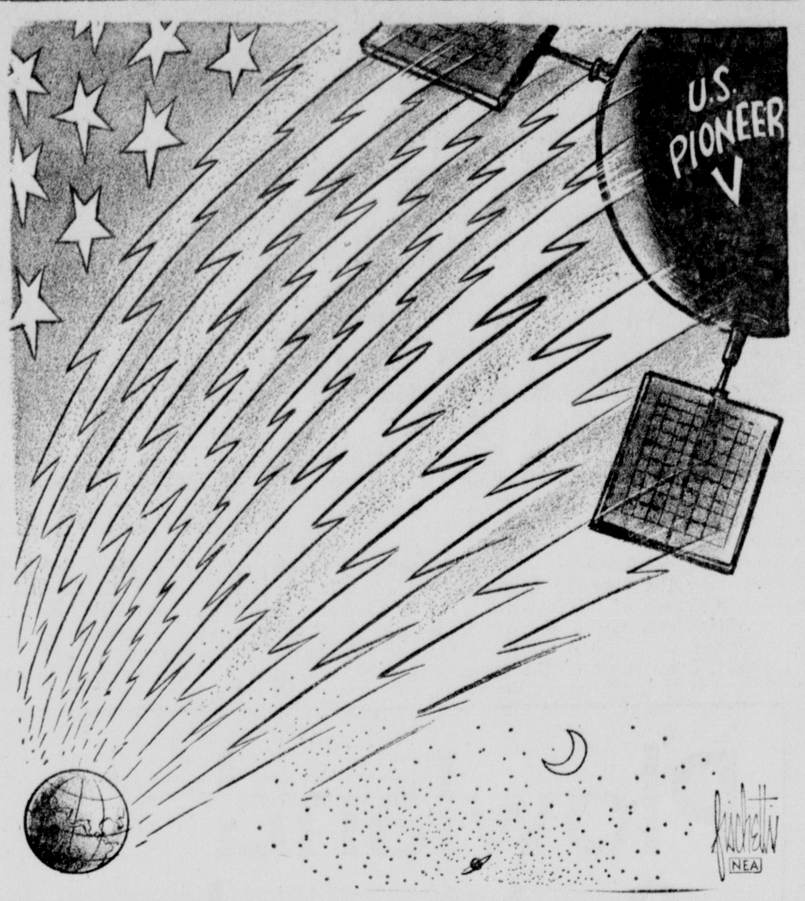
In any given year, it is wholly beside the point to note that this or that primary has in the past been either a promoter of presidents or a graveyard for hopes. All that counts is how the politicians will view it this time.

Florida was important in 1956 with its crucial Stevenson-Kefauver fight. In 1960 it is nothing. West Virginia seldom has had a major place, but this year's Kennedy-Humphrey contest is front and center right now.

You can note that Estes Kefauver won a string of primaries and never got the nomination (most of his victories were unopposed in 1952). But perhaps it is more significant that in this century no man who has been elected to the White House failed to enter and win at least one primary.

The primaries should and will continue to serve us in our presidential choices until something better is devised. The critics have not given us the faintest hint what that might be.

New Glory



The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's like a visit by the Grand Canyon when President Charles de Gaulle came to Washington Friday. He's one of the wonders of nature. But it's doubtful he'll work any wonders here.

Right now towering, 69-year-old De Gaulle is France's indispensable man, a kind of miraculous human glue keeping France stuck together. It may not be permanent. In the end he may finish with his prestige badly diminished.

He became the rallying point for his countrymen, the symbol of their dreams for a resurrected France, when it fell in 1940. Two years ago he was recalled from his self-imposed seclusion to save his tottering country from anarchy.

He had lived out of sight, above parties, aloof, keeping alive in himself and his countrymen a vision of himself as the supreme and final custodian of French grandeur, ready to make it a reality if called upon. He was called.

It would have been pathetic if he hadn't been and, instead, had died in seclusion with his mystical belief in himself and his county unused.

What has he done? He has sought to keep three balls in the air:

1. To make France an atomic power. He succeeded, but only because the foundations had been laid long before he took office. He simply kept the program going. Now France has had two nuclear explosions.

2. To convince the world France must be treated as an equal. His importance in this effort has been overplayed and grossly exaggerated. France is not actually the equal of the biggest powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, in manpower, strength, or resources.

And, since it still has no nuclear arsenal, it is not militarily equal. Nevertheless, the United States and Britain, which do have nuclear weapons, have brought France into its considerations. They did this before De Gaulle.

3. To restore tranquility to a France which was torn apart over the Algerian crisis and badly split internally over its domestic problems when he took office two years ago.

He still hasn't solved the Algerian problem and may never be able to before he leaves the presidency. The Algerian war is now in its sixth year. French farmers are restive under his economic policies.

And the French political parties—even though his leadership remains unchallenged as of now—are getting restless under what is practically his one-man rule.

In short, despite his pride and his enormous self-confidence in himself and France, he may wind up settling nothing and leaving his countrymen with the memory of a grand illusion that he was accomplishing what he didn't accomplish.

He will discuss with President Eisenhower the Western position at the summit in Paris May 16 when they meet with Premier Nikita Khrushchev and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

But that may prove to be nothing more than a pleasant chat, and for this reason:

The Western position was agreed to recently when the Western foreign ministers, including De Gaulle's, met here and agreed on summit strategy. What they agreed on was neither imaginative nor startling.

They agreed to stick to the positions they had held for months in dealing with the Soviet Union.

For Glamour's Sake Don't Sacrifice Feminine Charm

Is the American woman so intent on trying to look glamorous that she has lost a lot of her feminine charm?

An Italian artist seems to think so. What troubled him most about American women, on a recent visit to our country, was that they seemed to be frantically trying to buy glamour in order to impress each other.

Says he: "It is rarely that I have seen an American woman gaze with tenderness or rapt attention into the eyes of her husband, fiance or escort. She looks instead at the other women.",

There's a lot of truth in what he says. We women spend hours in beauty salons, getting the works, slavishly follow fashion dictates whether a style is becoming to us or not, bounce around on machines in reducing salons, and often spend more than we can afford on clothes and cosmetics. For what?

To please our men? You know better. It's to impress other women, just as the Italian painter says.

We go to a lot more pains dressing for a fancy tea or luncheon at which there will be only women guests than we do getting ready to go out alone with our husbands.

And if you actually think the Italian is maligning us when he says we pay little attention to our men when they take us out, just look at the women around you next time you go to dinner in a restaurant.

Most of them will be wearing expressions of bored indifference. Even as their men talk, the women's eyes will be roving over the room, watching everyone who comes in or leaves.

You'll see very few looking at their men "with rapt attention," seemingly oblivious to everyone else in the room.

In all honesty, we have to plead guilty to the Italian's charge that we pay too much attention to glamour—and not enough to our men.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Blessedness for All

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Comparisons of the Four Gospels would be as odious as comparisons are commonly judged to be. Each gospel has its distinctive quality and offering.

The Gospel of St. Mark is the simplest and most direct. The wonders of the birth of Jesus are not there at all. It begins with the ministry and the works, and everything is "straightway."

St. Luke's Gospel is the New Testament's supreme literary achievement: the gospel of the parables and of the incidents that enrich the ministry and human contacts of Jesus.

The Gospel of John, so different, tells much that the other three gospels omit—the words of Jesus concerning worship and truth, the intimate conversations with the disciples as the shadow of the cross loomed.

The Gospel by Matthew is distinctive for two reasons—the story of the birth of Jesus and the Sermon on the Mount, with its Beatitudes.

The Sermon on the Mount was probably a series of discourses that St. Matthew gathered together. It seems doubtful that they could all have been delivered at one time. The Beatitudes, however, stand as a distinctive part, such as today we would set up on a religious display card or booklet for daily contemplation.

The pronouncements of blessings are distinctive not only for the subjects but also for the explanations, and the way in which the blessedness is expressed.

Take, for example, the blessing upon the righteous. It is for those who "hunger and thirst after righteousness"—an intense expression of spiritual need in terms of actual bodily existence.

It is in harmony with the zeal of Old Testament saints crying out:

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Psalm 139:23.)

That, certainly, was the cry of a pure soul, the true type of spiritual hunger and thirst.

Similarly in the preciseness with which the form of each promised blessing is expressed. It would seem that no human or spiritual need is omitted—the mourners, the meek, the merciful, the peacemakers and the poor in spirit.

It is possible that our English translation does not bring out the richness or fullness of the original words. A French translation makes either the meek or the poor in spirit (I have forgotten which) the "debonnaire"—the gloriously carefree, as Jesus emphasized living in His exhortations for fearlessness and abundance of life.

The Beatitudes emphasize an aspect of the Bible that is perhaps not commonly stressed. It is doubtful whether a book of life and truth could have had such power, if it had been less rich in its expression.

The Bible abounds in the qualities that universally have marked distinction and greatness in literature. Much of this reflects its Eastern origin and setting. Cold statements of fact take on a richness of symbolism.

Take, for example, Ecclesiastes 12, which it not untypical of much else scattered throughout the Bible. "The keepers of the house," "the grinders," "those that look out the windows," "the silver cord," "the golden bowl" — the body with its parts, and its ultimate end—but what a way to express it all!

A similar quality and distinction is the fact that Jesus expressed the deepest truth concerning the gospel, character and conduct in the form of stories and parables.

Of that I think I should write a little more, for to me it is the tragedy of historic Christianity that it has made so much of the controversial aspects of the New Testament and, in comparison, so little of the Parables.

"But in the United States everyone is given an individual plate with food piled on top of it. You can talk if you want to."

Happy Times

Satisfaction Is Their Pay for Sharing Lifetime Know-How

BY MARIE DAERR

In a Midwestern city recently, a young man demonstrated to a group of retired engineers his invention, an alarm designed for attachment to an auto trunk lock.

Another young inventor showed these older men his brainchild—a spring clip to attach to an ash tray. This was a safety device designed to put out a forgotten cigaret.

The older men were members of one committee of this city's Senior Council, a group of retired and soon-to-be-retired business and professional men. The council members' hobby is putting to use their vast knowledge and experience, a practice that has proved extremely profitable to them and to others.

The services they offer are free. Council members say their returns in feelings of satisfaction and usefulness can't be estimated.

The inventors' committee specializes in ideas on how to patent, finance, manufacture and market the devices brought to its attention.

The inventor of the alarm, for instance, was referred to a local manufacturer. The man who devised the ash tray item was advised to get in touch with cigarette companies, which might be interested in the clip as a premium article.

Inventors aren't the only people the council helps, free of charge. Small businesses get expert advice from the council's business counseling committee.

An organization that serves blind people got help on marketing brooms, rugs and other items made by the sightless. A home for the aged is putting into practice the council's recommendations on operating methods, finances and organization.

The council made a salary schedule study for the school board in its city, a major project that took 23 council members seven months of hard work. Result was a new schedule which paid adequate attention to length of service.

A hospital and a college got expert advice on fund raising from a council member who had had much experience in this field.

New projects include: assembly of a library of information on retirement practices and preretirement preparation of American corporations, and finding subcontracts for mentally retarded young people to keep them busy in a supervised workshop.

Q—I'd like to know if a widow gets the same amount of social security at 62 as at 65? I earn between $3,900 and $4,200 a year. —Mrs. L. F. W.

A—Widows are eligible for old-age benefits at 62 with no reduction in the amount. If you are eligible for benefits as a worker, you may have either the widow's or the worker's benefit.

If you choose to retire before 65, your worker's benefit would be reduced. Visit your social security office to find out what benefits are due you.

Q—I am a widow, 59. Am I eligible for a golden-age group?—R.B.

A—Most of the groups I know have 60 as minimum age, though a few take people a few years younger.

If there is no group for you in your area, why not start one?

Get together a list of prospective members, find a meeting place, tap the best program resources available—and you are on your way.

American Menu

Enjoy French Treats in U.S.

The fame of the golden mustard from Dijon, France, has spread throughout the United States. Our cooks, just like the French, frequently use this delicately spiced condiment to add special flavor to meat dishes, salads and vegetable sauces. You can now get Dijon mustard (mild, strong or extra strong) in gourmet corners of supermarkets, five and ten cent stores and in specialty and department stores.

French Mustard Meat Balls
(Yield: 6 servings)

Combine 1½ lbs. ground chuck, 1/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons Dijon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon chopped capers, 1 teaspoon anchovy paste, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 egg, beaten. Shape into 2½-inch balls (18). Brown on all sides in hot shortening over medium heat. Lower heat and cook 15 to 20 minutes or until centers have cooked. Serve with mashed potatoes, cooked vegetables.

Chestnuts

Americans are familiar with the French chestnut confection, marrons glaces. But now French chestnuts in a variety of forms are also available.

Whole chestnuts, packed in either water or brine, make delicious stuffings or garnishes for meat. Chopped or ground, they can be added to croquettes or vegetable sauces. Canned puree of chestnuts au natural (unsweetened) is a French staple. Season the puree, add milk or stock for an excellent chestnut sauce for meats or vegetables. Or, unsweetened and flavored with pure vanilla extract, the puree becomes a basic filling for cakes or pies.

Creme of glace chestnuts, a sweet, vanilla flavored cream, is a basic for many French desserts. For tarts or pies, combine the creme with butter, chocolate, whipped cream and vanilla. It comes also in tubes for decorating pastries and cakes.

Monday's Dinner: Marinated cubed celery root, Dijon mustard meat balls, whipped potatoes, broccoli, French bread, spring salad with French dressing, French chestnut tarts, (red wine), coffee, tea, milk.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Samuel Langhorne Clemens is getting a big play this month, since this "most American of all our writers" died just 50 years ago. Project 20 came on TV Friday night with a tribute that fit the subject.

This highly youthful NBC series has done some fine things and "Mark Twain's America" was one of its best. Here is a field that TV can do better than any other medium — retrospective journalism. One such show is worth a wagon load of Westerns.

The technique is not new. It was used magnificently in a short film of Michaelangelo's work, "The Titans." But Project 20 has perfected the method of combining still photographs into a moving study. By panning across the old photos, focusing on closeups, combining them with a meaningful continuity and an expressive musical score, the result is as instructive as if movie cameras had been used in those long ago days.

Mark Twain's America was a robust one. You saw Hannibal, Mo., in the days when Huck Finn was prowling its muddy streets. Then you caught the excitement of the steamboats on the Mississippi, where the author got his name. Howard Lindsay, the narrator, explained that Mark Twain was the lineman's call for two fathoms.

Only in the latter sections did "Mark Twain's America" go awry. There was too much dwelling on extraneous matters in Clemens' mature years.

But it all added up to another hit for Project 20, which, along with CBS' weekly "Twentieth Century," is providing the most entertaining approach to history.

Pakistan is the largest Moslem nation in the world. Separated by 900 miles of Indian territory, East Pakistan and West Pakistan total about 365,000 square miles.

BLAZE OF SUNLIGHT

THE STORY: Rose Holmes continues to struggle toward adjustment to the fact of widowhood. She and Mark had lived together 20 happy years, but the suddenness of his death left her in a state of near shock. She feels as though she were in a tunnel, separated from others by darkness and high walls.

XVIII

That was the summer the Baileys moved into the place next door. Rose went to call on them, an automatic gesture in this neighborhood. She, Debbie and Tim—at home between term's end and summer school—had seen them from a distance and the real-estate woman whom Rose knew said, "Do go and see Mrs. Bailey, such a nice girl and I'm grateful to her. She helped make up her husband's mind. I never thought. I'd unload the Lambert house."

The Lambert—now the Bailey—house was a small, sagging salt box, still sturdy. It was like a woman in worn tweeds and scuffed boots; strong, ancient, with the good facial bones showing through, visible beauty even in advanced age.

Ann Bailey made them welcome. She was a big girl in the first perceptible stages of pregnancy. She took her callers inside and apologized for the confusion.

The ceilings were low, the cracked, plastered walls were painted outrageous colors, mercifully faded, but the moldings, the wide floor boards and fireplaces were superb.

"This is older than ours," Rose told Debbie and Debbie said, "It's George, but I like ranch houses."

Neither her mother nor Mrs. Bailey objected to her preference.

"It's fun to do a place over," Rose said. "We did ours."

"It will probably take years," Mrs. Bailey said, "but we'll have something to show for it." She added that her husband worked for a Wall Street firm and in order to have a car, she took him to and from his trains.

"If there's anything we can do, tell us. We're as close as your phone when you get it, and I hope that will be soon."

"Oh," said Mrs. Bailey, "we'll have one almost immediately—Jim carried on about my Condition—he even spoke with a capital C until they gave in. . . . That's very good of you. Do you have a big family?"

"Just Debbie, her brother Tim and I," Rose said. "Tim has a summer job. Debbie has one, too. They'll be leaving soon. We're not far down the road and—barring your Condition—you could jump over the walls. It's nice," she added—not really meaning it but wishing to be kind—"to have neighbors. The place has been vacant for so long. It was occupied by an ungregarious spinster, the last of the Lamberts, the year we came here. She died soon after . . . I don't think our arrival had anything to do with it."

"Actually," said Debbie, "Mother crept in and poisoned her one day."

"Arsenic," agreed Rose. "Well, you tell Mr. Bailey——"

"Jim," corrected his wife, "and my name's Ann."

Walking home, Debbie said, "Gee, young marrieds have it rough, don't they?"

"Not in this case," her mother said, "for they were able to buy a house—even if, as is probable, it's mortaged. As for doing it over, that's no obstacle when you're young. Your father and I did a good deal of work when we came here—though not as much as the Baileys will have to do—and we had two kids. I know pretty well what they'll go through. It's worth it." Yes, it really was worth being together, watching something come into reality, making a house belong.

Ann Bailey turned up the following Sunday afternoon, bringing her husband. He was taller than she, a quiet young man with a good smile. Rose unlocked the tool shed and told him to help himself. There were many things he could use. "I'll take good care of them," he promised earnestly, "and I can't thank you enough."

She said, "Mark—my husband—always kept things shipshape, so everything you use will be in order."

Tim came roaring in and he and Jim talked basketball. He came home at all hours and most evenings had Rose's car. When it was in use, one of his multitudinous friends came for him, and his mother perceived that, although now and then last winter's maturity showed, he had reverted to his old carelessness.

He and Debbie were children; children adjust. Yet often, looking over guns or fishing tackle with Bluff breathing heavily down his neck, Tim would say, as if abstractedly, "Gee, I miss Pop," in an open, seemingly unemotional fashion, as if stating a fact and then moving on. His mother envied him.

Logically, she could not expect that Mark's children would spend the remainder of their presumably long lives mourning; these lives were their own. They had a future. Because she was in a tunnel and had no future, she could not see them clearly and tried to reason with herself: They're young, I'm not. It was a different relationship.

She did not know whether she resented their forgetting—no, it wasn't forgetting; it was adjustment—in so short a time or was glad that they could adjust.

It seemed to her that ever since the night Debbie had come into her room at the inn she had somehow struggled to rise from her knees and was now standing, upright. She had to lean against something; there were the walls of the tunnel.

EXPERT PLAY NEEDED HERE

West selected the double dummy opening of the club ten against the three no-trump contract.

WEST		EAST
♠ J 8 6 ♥ A K 8 7 4 ♦ Q 8 6 ♣ 10 6		♠ Q 9 7 3 ♥ 3 2 ♦ 7 3 2 ♣ Q J 5 3
	SOUTH ♠ 10 5 ♥ Q J 9 5 ♦ A J 10 9 5 ♣ K 4

No one vulnerable

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	1 ♥
1 ♠	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 N.T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♣ 10

South won in dummy and played the king and another diamond. The finesse of the jack lost to West's queen and a second club lead knocked out South's king. He cashed his three good diamonds and led a low heart, but West was once more equal to the occasion. He rose with the king; took his ace; and exited with a spade. South had no way to get his two good hearts and wound up with only eight tricks.

Could South have made the hand? Yes! Should he have made it? I leave that to you to decide.

The winning play is simply to take the club in either hand and duck a spade. West will probably continue clubs and South wins the second club; cashes dummy's ace and the king of spades, discarding any small red card and goes after the diamonds.

All the play from then on will be in the red suits. West will make his queen of diamonds and ace and king of hearts, but that will leave a total of nine tricks for South.

Somewhat double dummyish but reasonable when you consider that West did stick in a heart overcall somewhere along the way.

♥♣CARD Sense♠♦

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Double	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ 2 ♥ K J 9 2 ♦ A 10 8 6 ♣ K J 7 5

What do you do?

A—There used to be an old gag to which the reply was, "Shoot your partner." Since that is barred just bid four hearts. Of course if you want to be mean you can bid four spades and annoy him but that is losing bridge.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner raises you to five hearts. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

Platinum is about 69 per cent heavier than 14k white gold.

Rockets And Space —

Hot Return In Space

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Using earth's atmosphere to slow down returning missile causes friction which makes the missile very hot.

The only other way to slow down a returning ship would be to use its rockets to brake its fall. This, unfortunately, would take as much fuel as was used to launch the rocket in the first place. And to launch this extra fuel about 1,000 times as much fuel would be needed.

This would make the rocket so heavy that it would collapse under the weight of its own fuel! So the only way to get a space ship back from outer space is by using air friction during reentry.

During this type of reentry the space ship will not only have be protected against melting, but its crew will need protection from getting cooked! Studies have been made and are still being made to determine how much heat man can stand and therefore how much insulation will be required. This program should take a giant step forward when the climate chamber at the Wright Air Development Center is finished.

This chamber will be able to produce: a temperature change from 50 degrees below zero Fahrenheit to 500° above in four minutes, a humidity change from -50° Fahrenheit dewpoint to 110° Fahrenheit, a wind velocity (speed) that can be changed from two miles-per-hour to 10 miles-per-hour, and air pressure range from sea level to 100,000 feet.

With this chamber it will also be possible to heat a man on one side and freeze him on the other. This condition would occur whenever an astronaut stepped outside his space ship while in outer space, because in space there is no air to reflect sunlight into shadows.

WADC's new chamber can also blow a cold wind over a subject while the walls are at a high temperature. This condition would happen during re-entry if conventional air conditioning were used to keep the pilot cool.

The Easter Story

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 3: The Trial

Then the council examined Jesus, and Caiaphas joined with them, condemning The Master's Teachings . . . and the crowds that followed Him.

They blindfolded, smote, and mocked Him, and they noticed amid the din, sorrowful, penitent Peter who's quietly returned again. But Peter, as fearful as ever, was tempted, and once more lied that he never had known the Stranger and his Last three times denied!

Then a cock crowed out in the distance, and Jesus called his name, and Peter withdrew in the shadows . . . to week in sorrow and shame!

Again and again they tried Him, but Jesus would not deny that He was the great Messiah, sent down from God on high; and He told them some day they would see Him . . . Whom "All power was given" . . . The Son of God triumphant, "Coming in clouds of Heaven!"

To the Judgement Hall of Pilate, amidst the deepening din, they led the weary Stranger, and continued to torture Him!

But Pilate was sad and fearful, for he found "no fault" in Him, so he turned Him over to Herod to quieten the angry men. But Herod was no less guilty, for "John's blood" lay on him, so he sent Jesus back to Pilate to cover his own dark sin!

Pilate so longed to free Him, but this was not to be, although at the feast 'twas a custom to set one prisoner free.

But the people cried out against it, and said "Turn Barrabas out," condemning the weary Stranger with curses and threatening shout!

They cried out, "Crucify Him," and Pilate washed his hands, of the Precious Blood of Jesus, and bowed to the mob's demands.

Though he found no fault in Jesus, "Take ye Him," he cried, so they placed a crown of thorns on His Head, and led Him away to die.

LETS GO BIRDING—

See Woodpecker Big As Crow

By Emma Mae Leonhard

For several weeks we have planned to write this article, but other bird experiences and snow crowded it out. At last we have caught up.

Sometimes a birder will go in search of a certain bird that has been reported and fail to find it. However, he often finds something else to high-light the trip.

Such an experience three of us faced on the morning of February 27. We had seen Bald Eagles at Meredosia, as we have already reported to you; and we wanted to show them to a birding friend. We hoped that an intervening week wouldn't make any difference, but it did: we found no eagles.

Just as we were returning to the car, we heard an unusual woodpecker call, something like that of a flicker but louder, deeper, and more full-throated. We thought that we recognized that call, although we had heard it only a few times on our many birding trips. However, we didn't dare name it, for we couldn't believe that such a woodpecker would be there in such open, low, and narrow woods.

Then all of a sudden there flew the bird across our path directly in front of us. It was the Pileated Woodpecker, our rare spectacular, crow-sized woodpecker.

We didn't need our binoculars to enjoy the full effect of this unexpected bird. There it passed us with its black-and-white wings sweeping it along.

Next to the very rare Ivory-billed Woodpecker, the Pileated is the largest of all North American Woodpeckers. Its length averages seventeen inches, and its size is always a convincing mark of identification.

During all the years of our birding we have seen the Pileated Woodpecker only twice in the woods at the foot of the Boddy Hill and twice at Smith Lake near Meredosia. We consider it a rare bird in this section and grant it the high light of that day on which we happen to see it. February 27 was one of those few high lights about which a birder must talk.

The Kitten Speaks

By Mabel Hall Goltra

Part 3: That Dog Jip!

They said the trifling dog was Jip,
I'd like to give him just a tip.
So he would not scare me out right
And raise my back to such a height.

Well, I will tell you of my plight,
It was indeed an awful sight,
The rug that laid before the door
Just slid with me across the floor.

Then up the stairs I led the chase
With my own heart, which ran a race;
I looked and saw no dog about;
The big screen door had kept him out.

E'en night shades crept a little pace,
I slipped along the great stair case.
From off the couch behind the door
I looked the situation o'er.

That dog could tell that I was near
By that time I just felt so queer.
He rose and scratched my friendly door;
Say, back again upstairs I tore.

And never more along those stairs
Would I have carried my affairs
But my kind hostess then appeared,
And told me that my health she feared.

You've heard the drama of my tale,
There's pain and anguish in my wail;
I did not see a restless mouse
Before I left that great big house.

Now kittens, one and all partake
Of this short moral I do make,
When'ere you hear a big dog bark,
Don't try to run. Just hit the mark.

This Strange Animal May Be In Your Yard

By N. Richard

"The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence," describes why we sometimes bemoan the fact that our surroundings seem so uninteresting at times. Nature in other areas seems to fascinate us more.

Whales and elephants, kangaroos and koala bears live in lands which we may never see. In the plant world we read of strange insect-eating plants.

Jungle butterflies show beautiful colors and grow to be very large. There is no question but what these things are important for us to know, but, let us also take the time to know about the interesting organisms of the Midwest . . . many of which are equally fascinating. If you are patient and alert you may be able to see some of the many forms of wildlife that are found in this area.

A few days ago, two men were laying a pipe under a foundation and discovered an 8-inch-long, sluggish black animal with yellow spots on its body and legs as well as its tail. The skin was smooth and shiny. Could you have guessed what it was?

This animal was a Tiger Salamander (Amblystoma tigrinum) which may be found in any state in the central United States. Last year about the same time an excited father found his children playing with one in the yard.

He was very concerned because he thought that it might be poisonous. Fortunately, his fears were unfounded.

The Farmers Ask: Where's Spring?

Editor's Note: Don Peasley, director of publications, Illinois Agricultural association, Chicago, enlisted the help of Illinois newspaper farm editors to compile a report on how the late spring has affected farmers. A resume of the various reports will be printed in the next issue of TAB, IAA newspaper sent to Farm Bureau leaders.

The Journal Courier farm editor's report to Peasley follows. Due to the heavy and general rain of Thursday night, conditions here are practically the same as they were on April 19.

April 19, 1960.

Dear Don:

Since you want something from this area for TAB's spring weather and farming roundup by Thursday, and this is Tuesday, perhaps I'd better get at it.

The farmers of Morgan, Scott, Greene, Cass and Pike counties are three weeks behind schedule and are as jumpy and nervous as a kangaroo with hives.

They weren't able to turn a tap in March, due to the record breaking snowfall. Then came the rains. None of the levees broke in this area, but there was a lot of seep water, the creek bottoms were flooded, and every inch of soil in the five counties was super-saturated.

Few Work Days

Normally this area figures on about 10 days in March for field work, and another 9-10 by the middle of April. In a few spots, particularly in the south end of the district, farmers have gotten in five or six days, but in other sections they haven't spent a day in the fields.

Most of them have given up the idea of sowing oats. In recent years oats have been sown here only as nurse crop for legumes and pasture mixtures, not as a crop. Some Pike county farmers, however, say they will still seed oats, up to May 1, to establish new pastures. A couple of fields in Greene county, planted before the snow on Feb. 20, look very good.

Corn acreage promises to be a little larger, or the same, as last year, which was the largest since 1937. Soybeans will take another jump, at least 3% or more if the balance of April is on the moist side. Continued rains will reduce the possibility of any corn acreage boost and will insure a record acreage of soybeans. There is plenty of soybean seed of satisfactory germination available and there is considerable interest in the new Shelby variety, which seems tailor-made for this section of Illinois.

At Columbiana

There's some corn planted, though—300 acres of it.

Columbiana Seed of Eldred, Greene county, plant as early as possible. They have a perfect place to do it. They fall-plow the rather heavy lake bottom soil of the Illinois river bottoms. Drainage is nearly perfect, with tile laterals spaced 125-150 feet apart.

They started planting April 8 and kept going, at a rather slow gait, until rained out a week later. The first field has been harrowed once and the corn is just beginning to peek through today.

Robert Best, in charge of production, says they like April plantings because "the corn doesn't get so tall, stands so much better and gets ahead of the summer drought. Quality is always higher."

The company will plant 17,200 acres in Scott, Greene and Jersey counties this year, the largest in its history.

Pastures look good, but are late and soft. Here and there you can find a few hogs on pasture, but no cattle at this date. The long feeding period has used up a lot of hay. In Pike county, particularly, feeders have cleaned up their barns, taking out hay baled two or three years ago.

Hay Scarce In Pike

"Good hay is non-existent in this area," says Herb Wendler, Pike county farm adviser. "During the winter some farmers used hay instead of straw for bedding, as straw was more expensive. Now, in the past week some hay has sold here for as much as $40 a ton, although how you can make any money feeding hay at that price is a real puzzler."

Fertilizer and fuel dealers are as nervous as the farmers.

"Despite the new storage we built last summer," says J. D. Bunting, manager of the Morgan County Supply Co. for the past 20 years, "everything is filled up, running out of the eaves. We've paid a lot of demurrage so far this season, as the country roads have been too spongy to get the materials out of the cars and onto the farms."

Bunting says he has "plenty of help lined up to work long shifts just as soon as the weather gives us a chance." He estimates sales of top dressings for wheat and pasture were cut in half this spring.

Cattle feeders had a harsh winter and a very rough March. Lots were very muddy, there was quite a bit of pinkeye earlier in the year, much more pneumonia than normal later on, and the cattle didn't thrive.

Poor Beef Gains

The Hereford herd of Burrus Bros. Seed Co., Arenzville, Cass county, is weighed in each fall and weighed out each spring. In past years the steers have averaged one and two-thirds pounds daily gain on winter rations. This year the same kind of cattle and the same feed made only one pound a day gain.

The Burrus company reports the best seed corn sales in its history. Inquiries about earlier maturing varieties have developed in the past week, reports Martin Burrus, president.

The hog men, particularly in the south part of the area, were hit—some of them very hard—by TGE, transmissible gastroenteritis. Two Greene county herdsmen lost more than a hundred litters each.

Corn and soybean growers are showing enhanced interest in weed killers, especially as pre-emergence sprays, reports John Bicket, Greene county farm adviser. Many brush clearing projects scheduled for late February and March were cancelled by the weather, he noted.

Used Tools Wanted

Interest in used farm machinery ran strong throughout the winter, and has been increased by the late spring. There were twice as many closing out sales last winter than the previous year, and a high percentage of them were for economic reasons. None I've heard of were forced by anxious creditors, but the operators simply were unable to see any immediate improvement in agriculture.

A repeated statement heard was: "I'm just tired of it all, and I'm getting out."

Since there wasn't too much plowing done last fall, interest in used tractors and plows has kindled in past weeks, says Keith Baumann, Jacksonville implement dealer.

"Sales of new machinery are running a little behind that of last year," he continued, "but the market for good used implements is very active.

Night Driving

"I can tell you one thing," Baumann added. "The farmers are all set to do a lot of work when the weatherman gives them the all clear sign. They've practically bought me out of field lights, bulbs and lenses."

W. H. Garlich, Jacksonville farm manager, says the farmers of west central Illinois are poised to do "a bang-up job. They have the power available, and with a month of decent weather the picture will look entirely different. A lot of chores, though, such as minor repairs around the place, cleaning the brush out of fence rows, etc., etc., just won't get done this year."

Is this enough? Too much?

With best wishes to you and your family.

Cecil.

Grinding farm grains for dairy cows usually increases their feeding value by 15 to 20 percent. For best results, grind grains to a medium fineness. Rolled or crushed grains have about the same feeding value as ground grains.

'Fine Academic Records'

LARRY WERRIES

JOE CLEGG

In a letter to the Journal Courier, Frank B. Lanham, head of the Agriculture Engineering department, writes:

"I thought you might be interested in the fine academic record these two men are making at the University of Illinois. Both are making well over a "B" average.

"Larry is a sophomore in the College of Agriculture and plans to become an agricultural engineer. He is taking a five year program which upon completion will result in two degrees: a bachelor of science in agriculture and a bachelor of science in engineering. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland H. Werries, route 2, Chapin.

"Joe is a senior in the College of Engineering and will complete requirements for his agricultural engineering degree in June. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clegg, who live about six miles east of Jacksonville."

Apple Blossom Sunday, May 1st, At Hardin, Ill.

HARDIN — Apple Blossom Sunday in Calhoun county will be May 1, it was decided at a meeting of the Calhoun Apple Advertising club Tuesday night in the Farm Bureau building in Hardin. Weather conditions will determine the best day for the blossoms, but orchard men feel that May 1 will be the best Sunday, and Apple Blossom Week will probably be from Thursday, April 28, through the following Thursday. As always, visitors are welcome to view the blossoms on any day.

Brochures are being prepared which will contain a complete map of the county with several suggested trails plainly marked, and these will be available to all visitors. Also included on the map will be the location of several individual orchards for those who have a limited time for viewing and who wish to visit a single orchard.

As in the past, a dinner will be served at noon on Sunday at St. Anselm's church in Kampsville, and the women of the Lutheran church in Brussels are also planning to serve their usual meal. Other plans for the day and week are not complete, and will be announced within a few days.

Also discussed at Tuesday night's meeting were parade themes for the Apple Festival and Fair in the fall, and work to be done on the fairgrounds.

Ebenezer Home Bureau Has All Day Meeting

The Ebenezer Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Moss at 10 a.m. April 13. The all day meeting brought the unit up to date on lesson material scheduled for study during the months of March and April.

The lesson on "Food Promotion" was the second in a series of three lessons on consumer buying. As an aid in understanding sales promotion Miss Graves asked the homemaker to study her own motives for buying highly advertised products.

Mrs. Ira Story presented the subject, "Program Planning." Members were given lists of possible subjects for next year's lessons and were asked to check their choices.

The major lesson, "8 Ways to 88," was given by Mrs. Howard Hess. During a buzz session groups of members listed their selection of eight ways to contentment in the retirement years.

In giving the selected subject, "Home Preparedness," Mrs. A. K. Beams stressed the importance of having a step by step plan of action ready for meeting possible disaster.

The business session was conducted by the unit chairman, Mrs. A. K. Beams. An announcement was made of a silent auction to be held at the May meeting.

At noon the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. John Oliver and Mrs. William Rigg, set up tables and added attractive Easter basket favors. Following the sack lunch the hostesses served a dessert.

Guests present were Mrs. Farrell Hansmeier and daughters and Billy and Mary Faye Nergenah.

PRICE OF SOYBEANS VS. PRODUCTION

Sales of soybeans now bring our nation's farmers over one billion dollars a year. Many producers have asked whether returns could be increased by cutting production. The answer to this question is not so simple as is often supposed.

The study of prices and price-making forces shows that as a general rule prices rise when supplies are reduced, provided all other things remain unchanged. But we live in an economic world where changes are many and often quite rapid. Then, too, when farmers reduce production they have less to sell, so their dollar sales do not increase nearly so much as prices go up.

As a general rule, too, increased production brings lower prices, again provided all other things remain unchanged. But the market for soybeans has changed rapidly, and will likely change more in the future.

The production of soybeans in the United States increased from 90 million bushels in 1939 to 234 million in 1949 and to 579 million in 1958. (Output dropped back to 538 million in 1959.)

The increase in production over the 20-year period amounted to more than 500 per cent. If the volume of production had controlled price over this period, such a huge increase in output surely would have depressed price almost to zero. Instead, the price of soybeans is around $2 or better, which is about 15 cents above the price support level. And there are no surplus stocks of soybeans. Perhaps a review of the markets for soybeans and soybean products will help to explain why prices have held up so well under rapidly increasing production.

Soybean production in the United States has totaled 1,600 million bushels over the past three years. Of this amount about 95 million bushels, or 6 per cent, have been (or will be) used for seed.

Domestic processings for the three years ending next September will be about 1,200 million bushels in all, or 75 per cent of total production. Produced from this amount of beans were, roughly, 12.7 billion pounds of oil and 30 million tons of soybean meal. About one-fifth of the oil was exported, partly under special government export aid programs. This oil sells in competition with large amounts of other fats and oils in world markets, so there is little chance to raise the price very much by reducing sales.

About one-seventh of the soybean meal also was exported and sold in competition with many other feeds from all over the world. Consequently we would probably have little success in raising prices of our meal by restricting our sales.

From the past three crops of soybeans, exports are taking some 320 million bushels, or more than one-fourth as many as are crushed in the United States. These beans are sold in highly competitive markets from Japan to Israel. Beans must compete in these foreign markets with many other sources of protein feeds and with many other edible oils and fats. We probably could gain some temporary price increases by reducing sales. But this would stimulate production of competitive products in other areas to take over the markets we now have. The increased production in the other countries would gradually reduce the demand for our soybeans. Thus it seems rather doubtful that we can gain any permanent advantage by reducing the production of soybeans.

"Tests on our own land showed us Heptachlor is best for corn soil insect control"
G. E. Hulting & Son, Geneseo, Illinois

G. E. Hulting & Son used Heptachlor to control corn rootworms and wireworms on 300 acres of corn in 1959. They applied a liquid spray, broadcast, and disked it in. They also treated the seed used on all of their acreage with Heptachlor 25% wettable powder. Mr. Cyril Hulting says, "An experiment station test on our own land proved Heptachlor is the best soil insecticide. Check plots were treated with Heptachlor and another material. The Heptachlor treated plots showed much better standability and yield. Last October we had an example of how good plant breeding and soil insect control can improve standability. Our corn stood up in a windstorm strong enough to uproot a large tree near our home farm."

P-A-G hybrids are worth up to $50 more per bag of seed
Every year, hundreds of side-by-side comparative yield tests are made to prove P-A-G hybrid performance. 15,776 of these on-the-farm tests show that P-A-G out-yielded the average of other hybrids by more than 9 bushels of #2 shelled corn per acre. Figuring a planting rate of 6 acres per bushel of seed, that's an extra $50 profit from each bushel of seed planted.
Genuine Pfister Hybrids can return greater profits from your corn acreage. This spring, plant all P-A-G . . . order soon to reserve your supply.

Routt Contest At Pleasant Plains Called On Darkness

PLEASANT PLAINS — Routt and Pleasant Plains battled to an extra inning 2-2 tie here Friday when the game was called after eight innings due to darkness.

George Boehm, undefeated in two years almost kept his record intact with a 2-1 lead over the Rockets going into the final inning.

The Pleasant Plains chucker walked the first three Rockets to face him in the top of the seventh but then got two straight strikeouts before walking in the tying run with a free pass to Fred Curtis.

Both teams' runs were unearned and only one extra base hit came in the tie contest, that being a double by Woolsey, who pounded out three hits in four trips.

Jack Lawless started for Routt and went 5 1-3rd innings, giving up three hits, both runs and five free passes. He also fanned five batters. Curtis finished up and allowed one hit and two walks while whiffing three.

Boehm's seven inning stint produced two scratch hits, two runs, five bases on balls and five strikeouts.

The only two Rockets hits were produced by Jack Lawless' bat.

Routt plays Pleasant Plains again Monday at Nichols Park in a seven inning contest starting at 3:45 p.m. There will be no attempt to make up Friday's no-contest affair due to conflicting schedules.

Illinois Deaf Wins Triangular

NEW BERLIN—Coach Jim Bonds' I.S.D. Tigers nosed out Auburn, 52½-51, in a triangular affair here Friday. The host Pretzels trailed with 44½ tallies.

Ernest Richmond turned in the outstanding individual performance for the winning Tigers with firsts in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broad jump. The other ISD first was garnered by Bobby Poncar in the discus event.

Huntley and Butler collected a pair of firsts for Auburn in the track events. Huntley won the 880 and mile run while Butler dominated both the low and high hurdles.

Illinois Deaf's record now stands at two wins against a lone setback.

Pole Vaulter Laz Receives $35,000 Payment

GENEVA, Ill. (AP)— A television commercial film which left Olympic pole vaulter Don Laz up in the air has brought him an out of court damage settlement of $35,000.

The former University of Illinois athlete and 1956 U.S. Olympics contender disclosed Friday he dropped suits in four states asking a total of $1,752,000 damages.

Defendants were Columbia Broadcasting System, the Ford Motor Co., and CBS outlet television stations. However, settlement was made by Lloyds of London, insurer for Universal Film Co. which prepared the advertising film.

Richard Theis, Urbana, Ill., attorney for Laz, said the suits charged invasion of the pole vaulter's privacy by unauthorized use of a film strip in a commercial advertising the Mercury car which was broadcast on the Ed Sullivan Show in 1958. As shown, the film stopped Laz at the height of his vault while a commercial message was read.

Theis said dismissal was asked of suits for $840,000 in Geneva, Ill.; $137,000 in Bristow, Okla.; $275,000 in Detroit, and $500,000 in Cleveland.

CBS stations in Oklahoma, Michigan and Ohio and the CBS outlets in Rockford and Rock Island, Ill., were named defendants.

The settlement was disclosed Thursday when the Kane County Circuit Court at Geneva, Ill., granted Laz' dismissal motion.

Proves Favorite's Role In Winning Keeneland Race

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—C. V. Whitney's Tompion proved his Kentucky Derby favorite's role logical Friday as he rammed home over seven other derby eligibles in the seven-furlong forerunner purse at Keeneland.

The son of Tom Fool, held off the pace until entering the turn, bettered Winfield's Farms' Victoria Park by a length and a half in a tight stretch duel.

Calumet Farm's Pied d'Or, the pace setter, finished third ahead of Bourbon Prince.

Tompion was timed in 1:21 4-5, one-fifth of a second off the track record.

Behind came Mrs. Adele L. Ran's Bourbon Prince, Calumet's Hillsborough, Lurullah, Tony Graff, and El Zag in that order.

The winner, with Willie Shoemaker up returned $4.40, $2.60 and $2.20. Victoria Park paid $2.80 and $2.20 and the Calumet entry paid $2.20 to show.

A's Drub Indians In Home Start

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Norm Siebern and Bob Cerv hit consecutive home runs Friday and started the Kansas City Athletics toward a 4-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in this city's American League opening.

Ray Herbert, Kansas City right-hander, limited the Indians to nine scattered hits as they went down to their third straight defeat.

Tito Francona doubled off Herbert in the second inning and scored on Russ Nixon's single to give Cleveland a 1-0 lead. Then Siebern led off the home half of the inning with a tremendous clout off starter and loser Wynn Hawkins that cleared the center field fence at the 421-foot mark. Cerv followed with his blast, a wind-blown shot over the left-center field barrier.

Home runs by newcomers Rocky Colavito and Steve Bilko and a round-tripper by Eddie Yost had the stadium rocking with excitement.

The Tigers, only undefeated team in the American League, now have won all three of their starts.

Giants Beat Cubs On Five Home Runs, 10-8

CHICAGO (AP)—An ill wind blew plenty good Friday for the San Francisco Giants, who slammed five homers in spoiling the home debut of the Chicago Cubs, 10-8.

The home run gale also accounted for two Chicago home runs as the Cubs, before a Wrigley Field crowd of 26,753, became the only National League club which failed to win its home opener.

Jim Davenport hit two homers, one coming in a five-run Giant fifth in which Willie McCovey also homered and pinch-hitter Dale Long, an ex-Cub, hoisted a three-run homer.

The fifth Giant homer was Ed Bressoud's wind-borne poke into the center field bleachers leading off the ninth.

One of Chicago's homers was a three-run blast by Frank Thomas in the third. The other was George Altman's solo shot in the fifth.

The winner was Billy Loes, the third of four firemen who followed starter Sam Jones. The loser was Don Elston.

Roberts, now 1-2, was relieved in the sixth by Ruben Gomez. The Reds had just scored their fifth run on a double by Ed Bailey. The inning before, Eddie Kasko hit his first homer of the season.

Jay Hook, now 1-1, the first of three Cincinnati pitchers, was routed in the first inning after allowing a run to score on John Callison's single to center, then loading the bases. Bobby Del Greco's double, Ed Bouchee's single and a pair of walks contributed to the Phillies big-scoring inning.

Matthews And Vaillant Fight 10-Round Draw

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Len Matthews of Philadelphia and Doug Vaillant, a 20-year-old Cuban, fought to a 10-round draw Friday night. Two of the three officials called it even and the third gave it to Vaillant.

Both Referee Billy Peerless and Judge Gus Jacobson called it a draw under the 10-point "must" system. Judge Stu Winston gave it to Vaillant, 98-91. The Associated Press gave each fighter 97 points — a draw.

Under the rules, if two of the three officials call it a draw, the vote of the third official means nothing. Vaillant thought he was declared the winner when the voting was announced and began jumping up and down in his corner until the rule was explained to him.

Vaillant had a reach of at least three inches on Matthews and at times made the Philadelphian look bad. But the big blows were scored by Matthews. He had Vaillant in trouble in a neutral corner in both the seventh and eighth rounds.

But each time, the lanky Cuban got out of trouble by clinching. He wanted no part of in-fighting and kept away from Matthews as best he could.

Vaillant has lost only one fight in 24 as a professional.

Matthews weighed 135½. Vaillant 137½.

The stadium was named in honor of the Briggs family which owned a controlling interest in Detroit's only major league team for many years.

ADVANCE TROUBLE

ATLANTA (AP) — North Carolina and Kansas universities will go on the disciplinary carpet when the Executive Committee and Council of the NCAA meet in Atlanta next week, the Journal said Friday.

The Tar Heels have been under investigation by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. for basketball recruiting practices, the paper said, and the Jayhawks for football recruiting.

Wertz Homer Carries Boston To 5-4 Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vic Wertz slammed a home run into the left field stands Friday night to give Boston an 11-inning, 5-4 victory over Washington.

Boston twice came from behind to tie the score in the American League thriller before the lefthand hitting slugger socked his opposite field home run.

The 16,707 fans saw Washington jump into a 3-0 lead with one run in the first inning and two in the third. Bob Allison drove in the first two runs and scored the third on a single by Jim Lemon.

Allison cracked out three singles and a double in five official times at bat to boost his batting average to .591. He has 13 hits in 22 times at bat and has hit in each of Washington's five games.

Rookie left-hander Jim Kaat blanked the Red Sox on three hits until the eighth when Boston tied the score 3-3.

Cardinals Beat Los Angeles In Slugfest, 11-7

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals clubbed five Los Angeles pitchers for 15 hits Friday night and an 11-7 victory, their second straight after losing the first five.

St. Louis equalled its run production for the entire first five games as Bill White rapped four singles, Joe Cunningham three singles and two walks, and Daryl Spencer a double and homer.

Left-hander Marshall Bridges picked up the victory in relief, although needing help from fireman Lindy McDaniel, making his fifth straight appearance. The Dodgers collected 14 hits. They pulled up 10-7 on Wally Moon's two-run homer in the seventh. Spencer homered in the eighth.

St. Louis starter Larry Jackson was given a five-run first inning cushion. Stan Musial rapped a three-run double off the right-center field screen as the Redbires knocked out Dodger starter Sandy Koufax.

But Jackson couldn't last the five full innings needed to register his first victory. He was yanked with two down in the fifth when Los Angeles pulled up 8-5.

SHORT GAME COUNTS

DUCK KEY, Fla. (AP)—Here's some good golf advice from one of the game's powerful hitters:

"That's not the way to win," explains Jay Riviere, the Texan who is pro at the new Duck Key course. "No use knocking yourself out by trying to smash the ball all over the course. Chipping and putting is where you win the points."

Riviere, a Rice tackle who played in the 1954 Cotton Bowl, formerly was assistant to Claude Harmon at Winged Foot, Mamaroneck, N.Y.

$125,000 PER GAME

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative deal for national television of American Football League games was announced Friday by the American Broadcasting Co. The agreement could mean as much as $2,125,000 to the pro league in its first season.

The network said it has taken an option on 17 games and has until May 15 to sell the games to sponsors. If the network sells 60 per cent of the air time, the deal will be closed, ABC said. Otherwise, the AFL will be free to market the games elsewhere.

ABC will pay the AFL $125,000 per game.

STOCKED TROUT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Heavy rains prevented fulfillment of all Illinois trout planting plans but six lakes and streams are stocked in Henry, Whiteside and McHenry counties.

The Illinois Conservation Department Friday identified them as Hayes and 40 and 8 lakes in Henry County; Coleta Pond in Whiteside County; and Boone Creek, Piscasaw Creek and Rush Creek in McHenry County.

Wyoming's football team will play home games next fall against New Mexico, Denver, Air Force and Utah.

Music Students In State Finals

PITTSFIELD— Fifty-one Pittsfield high school students, including nine soloists, members of three ensembles and the contest band, have advanced to the state finals in Class B. Schools. The finals will be held at Charleston, Ill., Friday and Saturday, at Eastern Illinois University.

The solos and ensembles finals will be held on Friday and the high school will perform on Saturday. Spring Concert

The Pittsfield High School concert band will present its spring concert on Sunday, May 1, in the high school gymnasium. The high point in the program will be the presentation of the John Philip Sousa Band Award to the outstanding senior member.

Instituted by the Pittsfield Band Association, this award carries the high honor of recognizing the top musical senior. The winner's name is kept secret until the concert, and much speculation and suspense is always attached to the presentation.

To assist in the presentation will be Mrs. Henry Wahlgren, president of Band Boosters Association; Richard Heitholt, high school principal; Warren Winston 1958 winner and Mary McHose 1959 winner.

A special feature of the afternoon will be a piano solo by Mary McHose, accompanied by the band in a Mozart Concertino. Miss McHose is presently majoring in music at the University of Illinois, continuing her study toward a career as a professional musician.

News Notes

The Unit 10 School Board held its re-organization meeting and re-elected Wade Grimes of Nebo as president of the board. Dean Sneeden was re-elected secretary. This was the first meeting with the two new members, Merle McLaughlin of Baylis and Paul Dunham of New Salem. Other members of the board are Joe Gay, Rockport, A. C. Holloway of Pearl and Virgil Parks of Milton.

The Knights of Columbus have voted to send one student to the Egyptian Music Camp at Duquoin this summer. They will again sponsor a baseball team in the Little League.

Mrs. Harry Collins has sold her furniture and will move to Quincy where her daughter Roseann is employed at Gardner Denver.

The newly formed Lincoln Museum Historical Society will hold a meeting on Saturday, for a discussion on plans, at the home of Mrs. Almarena Grote.

The Pittsfield Woman's Club will meet on Tuesday, April 26, at the Community Center. Miss Minna Bauch, the president, will be in charge of the meeting. The program will be by Mrs. Lucy Walker, "An Unusual Tea Party." Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Bert Riley, Mrs. Charles Shaw and Mrs. Ralph Harp.

SUB-DEBS TO ATTEND

Miss Bonnie Sutphen wears an all over embroidered polished cotton with low cut neckline. The enormous skirt features an unpressed pleat at the center front. Miss Sutphen, pictured below, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Sutphen, Jr., 1123 West State street.

A large covered buckle is used at the deep waistline and adds chic to the simple lines of the gown that fairly shimmers from the nylon thread embroidery.

Standing at the left is Miss Sally Clifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Curtis, 1204 Edgehill Road. Sally's gown is embroidered organdy with a tiered skirt and Bertha shawl collar.

Scallops predominate in the finishing of the collar and triple tiers of the skirt. Elaborate embroidery is used at the high waistline and encircles the top tier on the gown's skirt.

BEAUX ARTS QUEEN

Miss Dianne Sassenberger is pictured at the left. She wears a frothy gown with dainty decolletage forming folded pleats in the sheer yoke bordered with embroidered ruffling. The design motif is also appliqued about the voluminous skirt in a four-dart pattern.

Dianne is the daughter of the Robert Sassenbergers, 204 East Greenwood avenue.

Multiple rows of ruffles and embroidered tiers form the very full skirt of the gown worn by Miss Mary Holman, at the right. The snug strapless bodice is emphasized with intricate eyelet embroidery and a tiny waistline is marked with a peplum ruffle.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Holman, 13 Pitner Place are the parents of Mary.

The J. Dean Klump's daughter, Gloria, will wear a regal court gown with handsome back attention to self covered buttons and bustle bow. Dainty applique, studded with sequins is used about the portrait neckline and on the gown's left front skirt.

Gloria is pictured standing at the right. All of the Queen's attendants will wear long formal length gloves.

Below is Miss Marilyn Woods who wears a charming gown of embroidered organdy with wide floor-length hem. The squared neckline and brief sleeves enhance the snug bodice.

Marilyn is the daughter of the John J. Woods, 241 Caldwell street.

Petite and brunette Ellen Kennedy, seated at the left, is charming in a princess style gown with elongated torso and Sabrina neckline. Shirred fullness is used at the bustline of the short sleeved bodice.

The skirt of the gown borrows its generous fullness from gathering at the dropped bodice line. Ellen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Kennedy, 807 West College avenue.

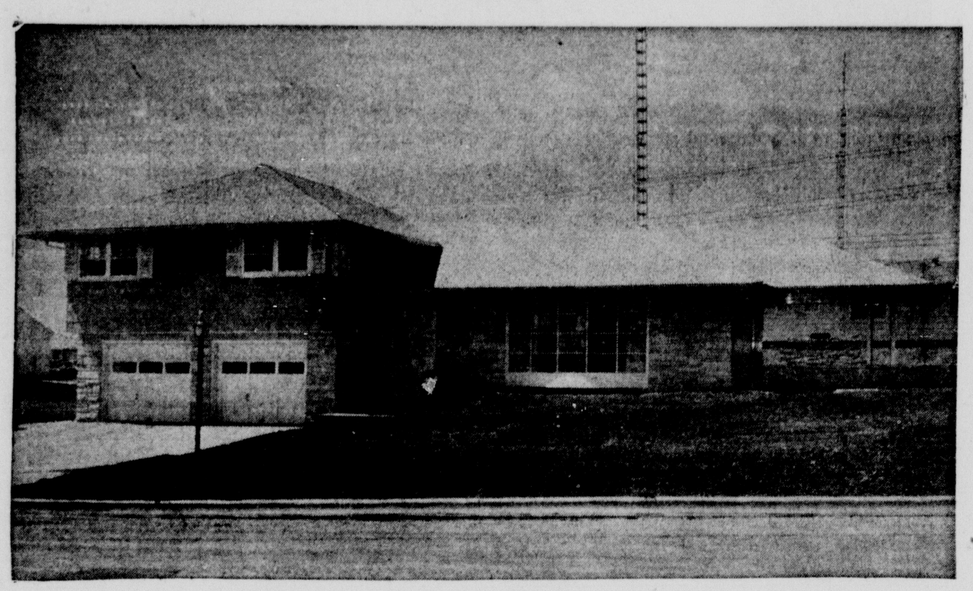
F. J. Andrews Lumber Company Presents

NEW HOME SERIES

NO. 18



Smartly styled, the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Spellecy, son Michael and daughter Kathy, No. 9 Newland Lane, Westgate Addition, incorporates every feature needed for comfortable, efficient housekeeping, and carefree living. Characterized by simple, straightforward lines, and well-balanced window treatment, this four-level house, offers many desirable living advantages. Cut stone, and wood-siding painted Indian Rose . . . (and by way of an exclamation point) white trim for the shutters and garage door, is used to create a distinctive exterior.

A stone planter borders the entry porch, where a recessed door permits entrance to the foyer. Just inside, for easy maintenance, a Ceramic Tile floor has been used for a small entry, and on the left, there is a coat closet for the convenience of family and friends. The kitchen is directly ahead to the back for easy access from the front door. To the right, through a wide archway, the spacious living room opens invitingly. Here, architectural interest is created by the use of a dais beneath the gracefully curving bow window on the front. A shade of Mimosa has been chosen for the decor of the walls, a Picturesque Print wallpaper, repeating the tone of the other walls, dramatizes the end wall. Folding shutter doors connect the dining room, which is ideally situated between the living room and kitchen. A three section picture window with small panes in the Colonial style, enhances this room, with Provincial wallpaper adding to the charm. A door opens to a covered veranda-porch (which can be easily screened or glassed in) to form a pleasant outdoor entertaining area in conjunction with the living and dining rooms. Continuity of interior space is emphasized by the use of Spiced Beige wall-to-wall carpeting throughout the first level. Platinum toned wood with a soft satin finish has been used for the woodwork.

Part of the spacious kitchen is designed for the efficient preparation of meals, another part has been designed for a coffee room. These areas are separated by means of a counter. The kitchen also combines three valuable aspects seldom found all in one room . . . ample work surfaces, commodious cabinet space, and a step-saving layout. Added bonuses are: . . . a wall oven unit, a surface top range with ventilating hood, an attractive window in the coffee room, and casement windows overhanging the sink to provide sufficient light and ventilation. A buffet-counter-pass-through and over head free-hanging cupboards (accessible for storage from either side) separate the kitchen and dining room. Design, decoration and furniture unite to make the kitchen an inviting room for family meals and entertaining. Informal charm is created by the use of Provincial wallpaper in the kitchen area, the walls of the coffee room are covered with wallpaper depicting "A General Store" motif. Interesting color accent is furnish by Pink Flicker Formica countertops, and a Corlon Futuresque Vinyl floor flecked with Gold and Silver. Gay, bright with color, the kitchen asserts itself as a "homey" center for family activities.

The lower levels are reached by descending five steps from the foyer. There are really two levels below: . . . the first, a casual, cheerful recreation room with a door permitting entrance to the garage, there is also a door opening to the patio . . . the other level, a half-flight of stairs down, accommodates a Junior recreation room. A decorative wrought-iron bannister outlines the steps. A convenient lavatory is adjacent, also a room for laundry facilities. Congenialty and warmth are the keynotes of the recreation rooms, qualities contributed by walls paneled in Natural Finish Birch in the Master recreation room, and by walls painted Azure Blue in the Junior room, the practicality of acoustical tile ceilings, Vinyl Tile floors, and the invaluable asset of good lighting.

Seven steps up from the foyer brings you to the sleeping level. The walls of the foyer and the upstairs hall are covered with a Mocha tone wallpaper featuring an interesting geometrical design. The four bedrooms (arranged so that they are out of view of the living room) combine sleeping comfort, good wall space, and excellent closet areas. The bathroom is conveniently located within a few steps of all of the bedrooms, it serves also as a powder room for the foyer or living room. A gaily colored wallpaper in a "Beauty Salon" pattern sets the mood for Light-Hearted Pink schemed with Smoke Gray for the color scheme of the bathroom. A full-width mirror surmounts the attractive vanitory. A harmonious and yet diversified effect was achieved by choosing a different color scheme for each of the bedrooms . . . Wedgwood Blue for bedroom No. 1 . . . Shell pink in room No. 2 . . . and Turquoise for No. 3. The fourth, or Master bedroom with walls of French Beige, with a private bath incorporating a stall-shower and a vanity sink, where a coordinated color theme ranging from Creamy Beige to Chocolate Brown, accented by "Conversational" wallpaper, leaves little to be desired.

On all levels you will find beauty of design and practicality as well, with no compromises this house offers quality and charm.

Baccalaureate services will be held Sunday evening, May 29, at 8 p.m. High school commencement will be Wednesday evening, June 1, at 8 p.m.

Eighth grade promotion exercises will be held Thursday, June 2, at 8 p.m.

All events will be held in the New Berlin high school.

Final report cards will be given out on Thursday, June 2, which is also the last day of the school term.

St. Mary's May 29

Eighth grade graduation for St. Mary's Catholic school has been set for Sunday, May 29. First Holy Communion will be held on that morning at 8 a.m. mass.

St. John's May 26

Graduation exercises for eighth grade graduating students of St. John's Lutheran grade school will be held Thursday evening, May 26, at 8 p.m. in the church basement. A guest speaker will deliver the address.

NCAC Approved

John A. Marr, principal of New Berlin high school, has been informed by Lowell Fisher, chairman of the Illinois State Committee of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, that the local high school is unqualifiedly approved for continued membership for the coming year in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This honored certificate of membership is displayed in the high school office.

Junior Class Play

The junior class of the high school has selected "Gidget" as its class play project. Recently made into a movie, "Gidget" is a sprite comedy with touches of a serious plot. The play revolves around a teen-ager who becomes involved with surf-riders at the nearby beach. In her struggle to show her maturity, "Gidget" stumbles into some very amusing situations.

The performances will be given Friday and Saturday evenings, May 6 and 7, in the New Berlin high school gymnasium. The play cast chosen is: "Gidget," Judy Loving; MalMal, Macie Edwards; LaRue, RuthAnn Trimble; Barbara, Loma Garrison; Buff, Nancy Marr; Stella, Andrea McCullough; Moondoggie, Tom Drury; the Kahonna, Jim Shepperd; Stinky, Mike Carriger; Malibu Mac, Clarence Russell; Lord Hathaway, Howard Horn; Don Pepe, Jim Bond; Hot Shot, Harold Wheeler; Golden Boy, Carl Compardo; the Game Warden, Steve Beyer.

Fred J. Wassell of the high school faculty is directing the production.

PUTS TOWN ON MAP

To do it he used six large boards and 80 pounds of plaster. His model, scaled three feet to the mile, includes homes, lawns, trees and utility poles in miniature.

It took the high school student six weeks. He used a map, shinnied up trees to get the lay of the land, and bicycled through the Borough's four square mile to count the houses.

He's thinking of becoming a real estate man like his father.

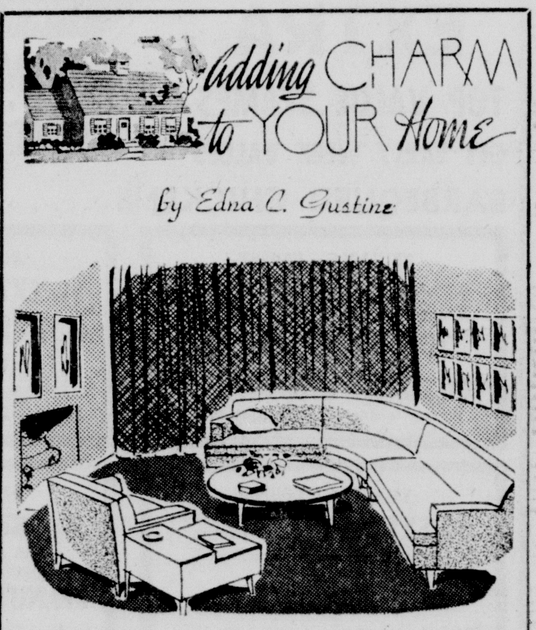
Adding CHARM to YOUR Home

by Edna C. Gustine



HOSPITALITY LIVES HERE

A home of ease and grace . . . of sociability and hospitality doesn't just happen. It is the result of a carefully thought-out plan faithfully executed.

A well conceived plan takes the dwelling as a whole into consideration suiting the type and style of the furnishings and decor to the architecture insofar as possible. Then each room is considered individually with attention centered on size, location in the house, relationship to adjoining rooms, and — most important of all—on function. Each room must be an integral part of the overall plan.

The home should grow out of the proportions of its rooms, and the proportions of the furniture should be in keeping with the size of the rooms.

A feeling of warmth and friendliness has been achieved in the modern living room sketched above by arranging the conversation group so that every seating unit can take full advantage of the hearth fire. The graceful curves of the long, low sectional sofa relieve the angular severity of the almost square room. The curve has been repeated in the circular hospitality table. Here is a room in the smart mood of today, planned around pleasant inviting sociability.

Like any good merchant, we take pride in what we sell you. We believe our pride is justified because we insist always on giving you high quality, tasteful styling and unquestionable value with every purchase you make from us. So make us your home store, won't you?

As I See It
by E. W. BROWN

It has been said that the "language barrier" is perhaps the greatest stumbling block to world peace. Out of curiosity, we looked the subject of world languages up . . . and were we surprised! What tongue would you guess to be the most spoken in the world? English? French? Spanish? Not at all. It's Mandarin Chinese, spoken by an estimated 444 million of the earth's population, according to a recent survey. English is next, with 278 million speakers. And if things aren't complicated enough, Russia alone has 14 different groups of 1 million people or more who all speak different tongues. A Syrian poet named Kahlil Gibran once said that "We shall never understand one another until we reduce the language to seven words." Maybe so . . . but from one look at the list of languages of the world, we don't advise you to hold your breath until it happens.

A German farmer's daughter, quizzed about setting fire to her father's barn, confessed she loved a member of the local fire brigade and wanted to lure him to the farm. Guess that's what they mean by "carrying a torch."

Thinking about a compact car? Valiant has everything! Valiant, not only has looks, it has the performance so frequently found lacking in compact cars. While it pinches pennies it never pinches you. There's plenty of room for a family of six, plus a commodious truck. And because of Chrysler's torsion suspension it rides like a high priced car. A phone call to 5-4333 will bring one to your door. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main.

TV NEWS
by DON SHUMAKER

A "western" can usually be described as "good guy" versus "bad guy." And Phil Silvers, starring in CBS-TV's comedy western special, "The Slowest Gun in the West," Saturday, May 7, doesn't hanker to tangle with tradition. In fact, in preparing the show, Phil and writer-producer Nat Hiken are going out of their way to go along with this grand old plot.

In the show, the "good guys" are stalwart, string-tied gents who are all property owners, registered voters, and kind to small children and dumb animals. Opposing these solid citizens is the ornriest, lowdownest bunch of skunks to ever stack a deck of cards or shoot an honest sheriff. Into this explosive situation rides Fletcher Bissell III, "The Silver Dollar Kid" (played by Silvers). Trouble brews, but not a fast gun is drawn against the Kid until an even bigger coward than he, Chicken Finsterwald (played by Jack Benny), blusters into town. What happens when "the two yallerest men in the west" meet is the uproarious climax of a show that promises to be the "western to end all westerns." The new big-screen RCA Victor TV set for 1960 may not quite be the "TV set to end all TV sets," but it comes close. With the brightest, clearest picture yet, and the best most truly "hi-fi" sound yet, the new RCA is unsurpassed in TV quality and dependability. Come in soon for an eye-opening demonstration.
